PRACTICE TEST 1

Reading

READ AND CHOOSE THE CORRECT ANSWER:

Color and Performance

1 What color are the walls of your room? What color is your computer screen? Does it matter? Some scientists who study colors say the color does matter. They do experiments to learn about how colors affect the way humans feel and work. People often want to know what color environment will help them do their best. The scientists say the answer depends on the type of activities people are doing.

2 Activities like spelling, memorizing, and solving math problems require paying attention to details. For these kinds of jobs, people must make very few mistakes. The scientists suggest working in a red environment when the goal is to do a job perfectly. The color red is used on stop signs and emergency vehicles. It makes people's brains think of danger and reminds them to be careful.

3 Other things are best done in a blue environment. Sometimes people must think creatively in their work. The color blue reminds people of the water and the sky. It helps people's brains be peaceful and open to new ideas. The scientists suggest that artists, writers, and inventers would work well in blue rooms.

PRACTICE TEST 2

Reading

1 Cody and his sister April decided to have a dog. They went to the pet store and had a look. It was a very small pet store that didn't have many animals. The owner of the shop was a nice old man named Mr. Smith.

2 He walked over and greeted Cody and April. "How can I help you?", he asked. "We would like to buy a dog," April answered. "Ah, well, we are not a big pet shop," Mr. Smith told her. "So we only have two dogs to choose from." They asked Mr. Smith to show them the dogs. Mr. Smith took them to the back of store where the two dogs were. One of them was a very big bulldog named Buster. The other was a very tiny Chihuahua named Teacup.

3 April wanted Teacup. Cody wanted Buster. They walked outside to discuss. They couldn't agree on a dog. April suggested to race home for it. The winner of the race would choose the dog. Cody agreed, then told April her shoe was untied. When April looked down, he ran off.

4 Cody ran fast because he wanted that bulldog. April was so far behind that he couldn't even see her. Cody finally got home. He was tired but happy. He knew he was the winner.

5 They went to the pet store to purchase Buster the bulldog. However, when they arrived they only saw Teacup the Chihuahua. They asked Mr. Smith where Buster was. He said that a few minutes after April and Cody left; two boys walked in and bought the bulldog.

6 Cody looked at April, and she held back a smile. He turned back to Mr. Smith. "Sometimes you win the race, but not the prize!" Cody smiles sadly. "We'll take the Chihuahua, please."

HARRY AND ANNIE

Harry and Annie lived a mile from town, but every day they went there to school. It was a pleasant walk down the lane and through the field by the little lake. They used to act that they were travelers discovering a new country and would throw leaves on the road so that they might find their way back again. When the ice was thick, they walked across the little lake. But their mother did not like it unless someone was with them.

"Don't go across the little lake today, children," she said as she kissed them off one morning; "It is beginning to melt." "All right, mother," said Harry, with a cunning smile on his face. He was very fond of running and sliding on the icy little lake. When they came to the lake, the ice looked hard and safe. "There," said Harry to his sister. "I knew it hadn't melted. Mother is always afraid we will drown. Come along, we will have a good time sliding."

So they stepped on the ice, and started to go across the lake. Suddenly, the ice broke to pieces, and they fell into the water. A man who was near heard the screams of the children and plunged into the water to save them. Harry got to the shore without any help, but Annie nearly died before the man could reach her. Harry went home almost frozen and told his mother how bad his behaviour was. He remembered the lesson learned that day as long as he lived.

PRACTICE TEST 4

Read the text bellow and answer the questions that follow:

The King of Beasts

Long ago, in the days before lions were known in Europe, the bear was considered “the king of beasts. It was the largest animal.” Many knights put pictures of bears on their shields. They hoped the bears would make them look big and strong to the enemy. Today, people still admire bears for their size and strength.

In North America, the two most common species of bears are the black bear and the brown bear. Some brown bears are called by other names, such as the Kodiak bear and the grizzly bear. Both black bears and brown bears vary in color from light brown to dark brown to black. These two species have much in common, but there are differences between them. Black bears are smaller than brown bears, for example. They are also more likely to climb trees. The brown bear has a shoulder hump and a curved snout. The snout of a black bear is straighter.

Bears belong to the same family of animals as dogs and foxes. They are also like people in one interesting way. They walk flat-footed, as people do. Most other mammals walk on their toes. When the weather gets cold, bears curl up in a cave or other cozy spot and sleep for the winter. Baby bears are born in early spring.

Bears eat both plants and meat, including nuts, berries, roots, fish, squirrels, and other small animals. Bears also like honey. Lucky for them, their thick coats protect them from bee stings. Bears live alone, except for mothers taking care of their cubs. They do not form groups. For the most part, bears are peaceful. They would rather walk away than fight. However, a bear will attack if scared or angry. For this reason, it’s best for people to stay at a safe distance from “the king of beasts.”

almanahj.com/qa 2026 2025 موقع المناهج القطرية

1. What is the PURPOSE of the story?

   A. to tell stories about baby bears

   B. to describe some types of bears

2. Which of the following words means the same as the underlined word "species" in the SECOND paragraph?

   A. types

   B. colours

   C. names

   D. caves

3. How are brown bears different from black bears?

   Black bears are smaller than brown bears, for example. They are also more likely to climb trees. The brown bear has a shoulder hump and a curved snout.

4. In what way are bears different from most other mammals?

   They walk flat-footed, as people do. Most other mammals walk on their toes.

5. Why was the bear considered "the king of beasts" in Europe?

   Because lions were not known in Europe.

PRACTICE TEST 5

Read the text bellow and answer the questions that follow:

1 Chess is called the game of kings. It has been around for a long time. People have been playing it for over 500 years. Chess is based on an even older game from India. The chess we play today is from Europe.

2 Chess is a two-player game. One player uses the white pieces. The other uses the black pieces. Each piece moves in a special way. One piece is called the king. Each player has one. The players take turns moving their pieces. If a player lands on a piece, he or she takes it. The game ends when a player loses his or her king. There are a few more rules, but those are the basics.

3 Some people think that chess is more than a game. They think that it makes the mind stronger. Good chess players use their brains. They take their time. They think about what will happen next. These skills are useful in life and in chess. Chess is kind of like a work out for the mind.

4 You don't always have lots of time to think when playing chess. There is a type of chess with short time limits. It's called blitz chess. In blitz chess, each player gets ten minutes to use for the whole game. Your clock runs during your turn. You hit the time clock after your move. This stops your clock. It also starts the other player's clock. If you run out of time, you lose. Games of blitz chess are fast-paced.

5 Chess is not just for people. Computers have been playing chess since the 1970s. At first they did not play well. They made mistakes. As time went on they grew stronger. In 1997, a computer beat the best player in the world for the first time. It was a computer called Deep Blue. Deep Blue was big. It took up a whole room. By 2006 a cell phone could beat the best players in the world. Chess sure has come a long way. Don't you think so?

Part one : Reading

Originally, the ancient Olympic Games were held in Olympia, Greece, from the 8th century BC to the 4th century AD. However, Baron Pierre de Coubertin founded the International Olympic Committee (IOC) in 1894 and initiated the modern Olympic Games.

As the decision-making body, the IOC is responsible for choosing the host city for each Olympic Games. The host city is responsible for organizing and funding a celebration of the Games. The Olympic program, consisting of the sports to be contested at the Games, is also determined by the IOC. The celebration of the Games encompasses many rituals and symbols, such as the Olympic flag and torch, as well as the opening and closing ceremonies.

The evolution of the Olympic Movement during the 20th and 21st centuries has resulted in several changes to the Olympic Games. Some of these adjustments include the creation of the Winter Games for ice and winter sports, the Paralympic Games for athletes with a physical disability, and the Youth Olympic Games for teenage athletes. The IOC has had to adapt to the varying economic, political, and technological realities of the 20th century.

The Games have grown in scale to the point that nearly every nation is represented. Such growth has created numerous challenges, including boycotts, doping, bribery, and terrorism. At each event of the games, the Olympics and its media exposure provide unknown athletes with the chance to attain national, and in some cases, international fame. The Games also constitute a major opportunity for the host city and country to showcase themselves to the world.

PRACTICE TEST (7)

Tigers are the largest of all cat species. They grow up to eleven feet long and weigh as much as 670 lbs. This makes tigers the third largest land carnivore. The only larger land carnivores are polar bears and brown bears. Tigers are not only large, but they are also fast. They can sprint as fast as 40 miles per hour for short distances and leap as far as 30 feet horizontally.

Despite all of the tiger's strengths, the future of the species is uncertain. Tigers face a very high risk of extinction. It is estimated that at the start of the 20th century, there were over 100,000 tigers living in the wild. The most serious threats that tigers face come from a much smaller species, one with an average weight of around 140 lbs. That species is Homo sapiens, better known as humans. Humans threaten tigers in primarily two ways: hunting and destroying habitat.

Tigers are hunted for many reasons. People have long valued the famous striped skins. Though trading tiger skins is now illegal in most parts of the world, tiger pelts are worth around $10,000 on the black-market. Though the fur would be incentive enough for most poachers, other parts of the tiger can also fetch a pretty penny. Some people in China and other Asian cultures believe that various tiger parts have healing properties.

Tigers have also been hunted as a game. In other words people hunted tigers solely for the thrill and achievement of killing them. Such killings took place in large scale during the 19th and early 20th centuries, when a single maharaja or English hunter might claim to kill over a hundred tigers in their hunting career.

Though tiger population faces many threats and obstacles to recovery, there have been some successes in conservation and preservation efforts. An organization in China successfully rewilded a small number of South China tigers. These tigers were born into concrete cages. This organization brought these tigers to South Africa and helped them learn the necessary skills for a predator to survive in the wild. Current evidence indicates that the project was been successful. While this is just a small step, it shows that restoring the world's tiger population is possible.

Directions:

Read the passage and answer the questions that follow.

Yellow dust comes from the Gobi Desert in Southern Mongolia and northern China, usually in the spring. The wind carries the dust over China, Korea and Japan. It is unwelcome because of its many harmful effects on people's health, the environment, and even the economy.

Yellow dust is full of pollution such as ash and poisonous gases and metals. It also carries viruses and bacteria. When the dust goes into the nose and the lungs, many problems can occur, such as a sore throat or breathing difficulties. People even die of illnesses that are carried by the yellow dust.

The dust can also harm the environment by ruining the soil and creating acid rain. It destroys animals' habitats.

Yellow dust storms cost people a lot of money, as well. It can take up to 6,000 gallons of water to clean one jumbo jet after a major dust storm. Do you believe it!

So, how can we deal with yellow dust? Some people wear masks when they go outside. Others stay home from work or school to avoid breathing the bad air. In order to control the dusty weather, China started to plant more trees, hoping to change the deserts into forest lands. However, planting more trees is not enough. We also need to cut down on pollution

Reading

1 I'm going to tell you about my Aunt Helen's house. There was a small town by the lake called Miller's Ford. My Aunt Helen uses that house as a vacation home, but staying in that house isn't a relaxing experience. I think the house is haunted! Helen says I've got an over-active imagination, but there are many things that happen in that house that cannot be easily explained.

6 One day, shortly after getting up, I went to find my Aunt Helen to bid her a good morning. I heard her talking in a room that she usually never uses. I couldn't hear any other person in the room with her so it wasn't a normal conversation. I went to make breakfast in the kitchen. It was a beautiful sunny morning. The sky was as clear as spring water. Half an hour later, I heard my aunt's car arriving. She had been to the local store. I couldn't believe it! "What are you looking so shocked?" she asked me. "I thought you were in the study, working on your letters, Auntie," I replied. A few other things like that happened over the next few visits I made to that house and I grew to dislike it very much.

15 Then, one day in my local library, I found a story in an old newspaper with the title "The Constant Babysitter". The story was that a baby had disappeared in one of the houses by the lake at Miller's Ford and the babysitter was blamed, a woman of 37 had offered to look after the baby. She spent all her time writing her letters and didn't know that someone had climbed into the baby's room and took her. The baby was never found.
