However, for the future I suggest some ideas that have to be improved. First, the organizers should find some ways to reduce the crowds. Moreover, a wider variety of food should be offered. Also, it is vital to hire more security staff. Finally, programs showing daily events should be sold to spectators.

3- Describing the production of (aircraft - motorbikes – cars,etc)

Motorbikes production is a huge and costly business. Most motorbikes are made by companies who can invest time in planning and production. Planning alone can take many years. Production can also be a very long process, the production stages are as the follows;

First, the company makes designs for the new motorbike. Then a model of the new motorbike is put to be tested by engineers and scientists to see how the model acts while working.

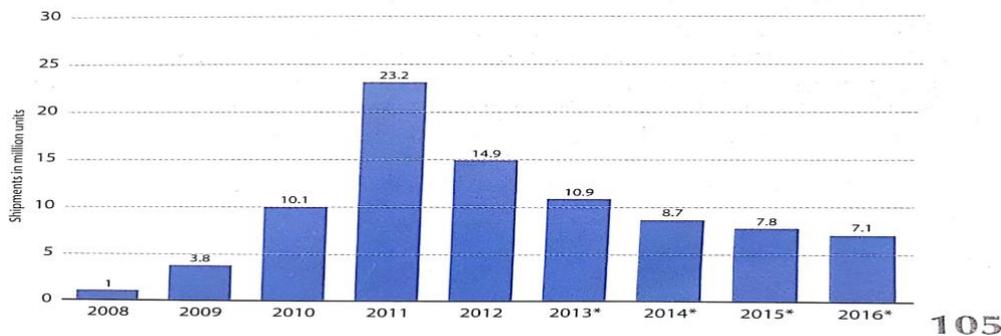

Next, a prototype of the motorbike is made and after that a limited number of motorbikes are produced to be tested on special roads. They check if there are any problems and if any changes are necessary.

Results of the test drive are recorded, and journalists prepare articles about the new motorbike.

Finally, mass-produce the new motorbike and they are sold all over the world after launching an international marketing campaign.

6- (A cause and effect essay) The causes of rising educational standards

Many studies report that there are different causes of rising educational standards. In general, educational standards can be defined as the highest quality of education. The essay aims to highlight the main causes of rising educational standards.

The most significant cause of rising educational standards is parental support and encouragement. Parents do their best to encourage their children to be highly educated. In fact, without parents' great efforts, it would be impossible for children to achieve success in life.

A second reason for rising educational standards is improved training for teachers. Good training makes teachers highly qualified and able to cope with modern methods of education. This creates talented teachers who can make learning easier and more interesting.

The third main cause of rising standards of education is a culture of achievement .The culture of achievements has risen in the last few decades. People are now expected to pursue their education and get better jobs.

In brief, there are different causes resulting in the rise of educational standards. I think it is necessary to do more research to be aware of all factors related to rising the Educational standards.
