Number 1: Which present has the girl bought her mother?

Jane: Hi! It's me, Jane. I've got Mum's birthday present. I think she will like it... Yes, that's right! It is a silver pen. She is always busy writing letters, so she will find it very useful... Mmm! I thought about earrings, but she seems to have such a lot of jewelry, and Dad bought her a watch last year. I'm sure she'll like what I've bought.

Number 2: What will the prize be in the painting competition?

Woman: We need to get a prize for the children's painting competition. Last year, Jane won, and I think she was given a box of new paints.

Man: It should be something different this time. How about some money? That's always popular.

Woman: Yes, but it would be nice to get them something that reminds them of the competition. I think a book about painting would be a good prize.

Man: You're right. Let's do that.

Number 3: What should the students take on the school trip?

Man: Now you will not need any money for the bus or your entrance ticket to the zoo tomorrow...because that's already paid for. But bring some money, some small change. You may need it. Who knows? Please remember, the only food or drink allowed on the bus and in the zoo is fruit. Bring some with you because it's a long trip, and you'll get hungry. And before I forget. You'll need to bring all your colored pencils for the work I'm going to ask you to do there.

Number 4: Which subject does the boy like best?

Boy: I really like the science teacher. He once let me spend the lesson drawing the equipment for an experiment. The Math teacher is much more serious, but Math is still my favorite subject. I used to like geography, but the teacher we have now gives us so much homework.

Girl: I love all my teachers. They are great. You know, I will miss them so much this summer.

Number 5: What time are they going to play tennis today?

Tom: Hi Jane! Do you want to play tennis after school – say about four o'clock? I think the weather is amazing today.

Jane: Mmm! That would be fun, but I have to see my doctor by ten past four. It won't take too much time. I think half past four would be perfect.

Tom: Ok! See you in the tennis court, then.

Number 6: What did the boy forget to bring from school?

Woman: Let me have a look at your sports bag... Your new t-shirt needs to be washed.

Boy: Yeah, Mum! I'm just finishing this worksheet... Mr. Jacobson's math homework is really difficult. I can't remember how to do it, and now my pen has run out of ink.

Woman: Here, have this pen. Now, where's your bag?

Boy: I'm sorry. I left it at school, Mum. I'll bring it home tomorrow. I promise.

=====

Man: Today, I want to tell you about the Climbing Centre in the heart of North Wales.

It's a good place to go, whether you're a beginner or more advanced. The centre was started in 1952 by Peter Evans, a man who loved climbing mountains.

The Climbing Centre shares the site with a business training college. This is open from March to November, but the Climbing Centre itself only runs courses from March until September, although accommodation for climbers is available in the winter months. The Climbing Centre has thirty twin-bedded rooms and ten single rooms providing accommodation for up to 70 people.

I tried a four-day course which I believe was good value at £280. The price includes all food and accommodation, equipment and instruction. However, you will not be given any walking boots. So, you do need to take your own. Make sure they fit you properly and are comfortable.

We spent most of our time on the mountainside learning different things. On the first day, we learnt how to use the map and went out to practice our skills. The next day we learnt how to predict the weather – by looking at the clouds while we were walking. On the third day, we began a two-day climbing trip. We had to sleep in a tent. So, we needed to carry all our food and camping equipment with us.

There are not many things to do in the evenings in the Centre, apart from watching TV or reading newspapers. There are cinemas and restaurants in the nearest town, but they are too far to go to. Anyway, People are usually too tired after all the hard work and fresh air they've had during the day.

Now, listen again and check your answers.
