Part 4: Inference and Justification

A Screen into Culture

Films are more than entertainment—they reflect who we are. Local movies often portray the daily lives, struggles, and values of the people in a specific country. They help preserve language, culture, and traditions, and allow people to see their own experiences represented on screen. These films create a sense of pride and identity among local audiences.

At the same time, international films have become more popular with the help of streaming platforms. From Korean dramas to American blockbusters, global cinema offers new ways to see the world. Watching foreign films can be both enlightening and educational. Viewers learn about different lifestyles, social issues, and points of view that they may never experience in their own country.

Most importantly, films can bring people together. Families gather to watch movies at home, friends go to cinemas, and film festivals welcome audiences from different backgrounds. Whether dramatic, factual, or passionate, films help us understand each other better and feel more connected.

T3-2024-2025-Grade 10 General/9 Advanced

Model Answers

Part 1: Opinion Model Answer

I enjoy both local and international films. Local films show stories I can relate to, while international films help me learn about other cultures.

Part 2: Essay Plan Model Answer

- Local films: show our culture, traditions, language
- International films: learn new ideas, see different places
- Films bring people together: families, friends, festivals

Part 3: Essay Model Answer

Film and media are important parts of culture, both at home and around the world. Local films help people connect with their traditions. They use familiar language, places, and stories that reflect real life. Watching local movies can build a sense of identity and pride.

On the other hand, international films allow us to see the world from different perspectives. They are often enlightening because they show how people live in other countries. This helps develop understanding and tolerance.

T3-2024-2025-Grade 10General/9Advanced

In addition, films bring people together. Families and friends watch movies for fun, and people meet at international film festivals to share ideas and experiences. Whether a film is local or global, it has the power to connect people through emotion and storytelling.

Part 5: Inference and Justification Model Answer

Inference Question Answer:

Yes, the author believes that both local and international films are important.

Justification Answer:

The text says local films reflect people's lives and create pride, while international films help people learn and understand different cultures. This shows the author values both types of films.
