Part 4: Reading Passage

Read the passage below, then answer the inference and justification questions.

 Reading: The Future of Our Planet

Every day, we see evidence of the damage humans have done to the planet. From polluted oceans to shrinking forests and rising global temperatures, the signs of environmental destruction are all around us. Scientists have warned that if we continue to live the way we do now—using too many natural resources and releasing too much carbon into the air—the consequences could be severe. Not only will wildlife suffer, but human lives will be affected through extreme weather, water shortages, and food insecurity.

However, the situation is not hopeless. Around the world, individuals, communities, and governments are taking action to reduce environmental harm. Many people are choosing to recycle, use public transport, and avoid single-use plastics. Some cities are switching to renewable energy like solar or wind power. Governments are passing laws to limit pollution and protect endangered species. Schools and media are helping raise awareness among the younger generation about why the environment matters.

Protecting the environment is not just about solving today's problems; it's about planning for tomorrow. If we take care of the Earth now, we can leave behind a cleaner, healthier planet for future generations. But if we ignore the warnings, we may pass on a world filled with problems that cannot be easily fixed. The responsibility is ours, and the time to act is now.

Part 5: Inference and Justification

Inference Question

Does the author believe that it is possible to reduce environmental damage?

Write your answer below. Use full sentences.

Justification Question

Why is your answer to the inference question the best answer?

Use evidence from the text to support your answer.

✓ Part 1: Opinion Question – Model Answer

What is your opinion about the importance of protecting the environment?

Protecting the environment is extremely important because it keeps our planet healthy and safe for future generations. If we don't take care of nature, we will face serious problems like climate change, pollution, and the loss of animals and plants.

✓ Part 2: Essay Plan – Model Answer

Essay Topic: Environmental protection

Plan:

1. Introduction

- Briefly introduce the topic of environmental protection.
- Mention why it matters to everyone.

2. Paragraph 1: Why the environment is under threat

- Pollution from factories, cars, and plastic.
- Deforestation and global warming.

3. Paragraph 2: What individuals and governments can do

- Individuals can recycle, reduce waste, and use eco-friendly transport.
- Governments can pass laws, use renewable energy, and protect nature.

4. Paragraph 3: How it helps future generations

- Clean air, safe water, and rich wildlife for the future.
- Shows responsibility and care for others.

5. Conclusion

- Restate the importance of protecting the environment.
- Encourage action before it's too late.

✓ Part 3: Essay – Model Answer

Essay: Environmental Protection

The environment is one of the most valuable resources we have, and protecting it should be a top priority for everyone. From air and water pollution to deforestation and climate change, the Earth is under serious threat because of human activity. If we do not act now, the damage could become irreversible.

There are many reasons why the environment is in danger. One major cause is pollution. Factories and cars release harmful gases into the air, while plastic waste pollutes our oceans and land. Another serious problem is deforestation. Forests are being cut down to make space for cities and farms, which leads to the loss of wildlife and increases global warming.

Thankfully, there are many things individuals and governments can do to help. People can recycle, reduce their use of plastic, and use public transport instead of cars. At the same time, governments can create laws to protect forests, invest in renewable energy, and educate citizens about sustainability.

Protecting the environment also helps future generations. If we take care of the Earth now, our children and grandchildren will be able to enjoy clean air, safe water, and beautiful natural places. It also shows that we are responsible and care about others, not just ourselves.

In conclusion, environmental protection is everyone's duty. Both individuals and governments must work together to save the planet. The future depends on the choices we make today.

Part 4: Inference Question – Model Answer

Does the author believe that it is possible to reduce environmental damage?

Yes, the author believes that it is possible to reduce environmental damage. The passage mentions that people and governments around the world are already taking actions to protect the environment and that the situation is not hopeless.

Part 5: Justification Question – Model Answer

Why is your answer to the inference question the best answer?

This answer is best because the text clearly says, "However, the situation is not hopeless," and describes how individuals, cities, and governments are making efforts to protect the environment. Examples include using renewable energy, recycling, and creating laws. These actions show the author believes environmental damage can be reduced with the right efforts.
