Social Relationships

Making friends at a new school can be difficult, especially when students already belong to established social groups. Some people are naturally more outgoing, while others find it harder to communicate. However, developing strong 1 (friendships / friendliness / greetings) is important because they provide emotional support and a sense of belonging. Students who are new to a school may initially feel 2 (friendly / in the dark / contemporary) about social expectations and unwritten rules. As they spend more time interacting with others, they gradually 3 (catch on / take a seat / say goodbye) to these expectations and become more comfortable. In many cases, it is 4 (hard to say / easy to say / crazy to say) how long this adjustment process will take because every individual is different. Nevertheless, students who make an effort to 5 (make friends / see eye to eye / to study) with others often adapt more successfully to their new environment.

Answer Key

1. friendships
2. in the dark
3. catch on
4. hard to say
5. make friends

2. Public Art

Cities around the world invest in public art because it encourages people to think differently about their surroundings. Last month, a new 1 (trial / exhibit / series) opened in the city center and attracted thousands of visitors. The artwork explored several 2 (contemporary / components / ethnic) issues, including climate change and artificial intelligence. While many visitors were 3 (crazy about / in the dark / in the light) the exhibition, critics did not always 4 (see eye to eye / make friends / catch on) regarding its artistic value. Nevertheless, the event succeeded in encouraging discussion among people who might normally 5 (don't care for / say goodbye for / take a seat for) modern art.

Answers

1. exhibit
2. contemporary
3. crazy about
4. see eye to eye
5. don't care for

3. Medical Innovation

Before a new treatment becomes available, it must undergo extensive testing. During the early stages of a clinical 1 (series / trial / exhibit), researchers often keep details confidential. As a result, the public may remain 2 (friendly / in the dark / contemporary) about important developments. Scientists must carefully analyze the evidence before they fully 3 (catch on / make friends / say goodbye) to patterns within the data. Even after positive results are reported, it can be 4 (crazy about / natural / hard to say) whether the treatment will be approved. This process exists because medical decisions require far more than a single successful 5 (greeting / friendship / trial).

Answers

1. trial
2. in the dark
3. catch on
4. hard to say
5. trial

4. Television and Society

A successful television 1 (series / exhibit / trial) can influence the way people think about important issues. Many viewers become 2 (crazy about / friendly about / ethnic about) particular characters because they relate to their experiences. Producers often include 3 (contemporary / greetings / friendships) themes that reflect challenges facing society today. However, critics do not always 4 (see eye to eye / make friends / take a seat) when evaluating the quality of a programme. Some audiences may even 5 (don't care for / catch on / say goodbye) a show that receives excellent reviews from experts.

Answers

1. series
2. crazy about
3. contemporary
4. see eye to eye
5. don't care for

5. Cultural Identity

Modern societies are often shaped by people from different backgrounds living together. Many schools organize events that celebrate 1 (ethnic / friendly / contemporary) traditions and encourage cultural understanding. Such events usually begin with a formal 2 (greeting / event / trial) from community leaders. Students are encouraged to learn about customs that may be unfamiliar to them and to develop 3 (friendships / relationships / connections) with people from diverse backgrounds. Although participants may not always 4 (see eye to eye / say goodbye / catch on) on every issue, these experiences often reduce misunderstandings. As a result, it becomes easier to appreciate perspectives that some people might previously 5 (don't care for / make friends / take a seat).

Answers

1. ethnic
2. greeting
3. friendships
4. see eye to eye
5. don't care for

6. Technology and Human Interaction

Although technology has made communication more convenient, some experts believe it has also changed the nature of social relationships. Young people are often 1 (crazy about it / in the dark / influenced<mailto:mkihohj@gmail.com?subject=ghjghjgmailto:https://t.me/seniors20261?subject=https://t.me/seniors20261>) when a new social media platform is launched, adopting it long before older generations. As a result, parents sometimes remain 2 (friendly / contemporary / in the dark) about trends that are widely understood by teenagers. While some researchers argue that technology helps people 3 (make friends / take a seat / say goodbye) across geographical boundaries, others believe that online communication cannot replace face-to-face interaction. Consequently, specialists do not always 4 (see eye to eye / catch on / don't care for) regarding the long-term effects of digital communication. For this reason, it remains 5 (hard to say / naturally / friendly) how technology will influence future generations.

Answers

1. crazy about it
2. in the dark
3. make friends
4. see eye to eye
5. hard to say

7.The Importance of First Impressions

Psychologists suggest that first impressions can influence relationships for a long time. A simple 1 (greeting / exhibit / series) often shapes the way people are perceived during an initial meeting. Individuals who appear naturally 2 (friendly / contemporary / ethnic) are generally viewed more positively than those who seem distant or uninterested. However, it would be incorrect to 3 (mind / catch on / take a seat) someone's personality based solely on a brief encounter. Although people may not immediately 4 (see eye to eye / make friends / say goodbye) with everyone they meet, respectful communication often improves relationships over time. Therefore, it is sometimes 5 (hard to say / crazy about it / naturally) whether a first impression accurately reflects a person's true character.

Answers

1. greeting
2. friendly
3. mind
4. see eye to eye
5. hard to say

8.Historical Documentaries

Documentaries have become increasingly popular among viewers who wish to learn about the past. A recent television 1 (series / trial / exhibit) examining ancient civilizations attracted a large international audience. While many viewers were immediately 2 (crazy about it / in the dark / don't care for) because of its detailed analysis, others found the content too academic. Historians involved in the programme did not always 3 (see eye to eye / catch on / make friends) regarding the interpretation of historical evidence. Nevertheless, the production encouraged audiences to think critically and to question information they had previously accepted 4 (naturally / hard to say / friendly). By the end of the programme, many viewers had begun to 5 (catch on / say goodbye / take a seat) to the complexity of historical research.

4. naturally
5. catch on

9.Community Leadership

Successful leaders understand that managing a diverse community requires patience and understanding. Community members may not always 1 (see eye to eye / make friends / say goodbye) on issues that affect their daily lives. Some residents are 2 (crazy about it / in the dark / friendly) regarding decisions made by local authorities because they are not directly involved in the planning process. Effective leaders therefore organize meetings where citizens can express their views and gradually 3 (catch on / take a seat / exhibit) to the reasoning behind important policies. Such discussions often create a sense of 4 (friendliness / exhibit / trial) among participants and encourage cooperation. As a result, communities become better equipped to address challenges collectively.

Answers

1. see eye to eye
2. in the dark
3. catch on
4. friendliness
5. cooperation (implied)

10.Global Advertising

Creating an internationally successful brand is a challenging process. Companies must understand how consumers from different 1 (ethnic / contemporary / friendly) backgrounds respond to advertising messages. A marketing campaign that is effective in one country may not be successful in another. For this reason, advertisers carefully study consumer behaviour before launching a new product. Even experienced professionals do not always 2 (see eye to eye / catch on / make friends) regarding the best marketing strategies. Some consumers become 3 (crazy about it / in the dark / hard to say) immediately after seeing a campaign, while others remain unconvinced. Consequently, it is often 4 (hard to say / naturally / don't care for) whether a product will achieve global success. In some cases, companies conduct a market 5 (trial / exhibit / greeting) before introducing the product worldwide.

Answers

1. ethnic
2. see eye to eye
3. crazy about it
4. hard to say
5. trial

11. Education and Learning

Teachers often observe that students learn in different ways. Some individuals quickly 1 (catch on / say goodbye / make friends) to new concepts, while others require additional explanation and practice. Educational researchers do not always 2 (see eye to eye / take a seat / exhibit) regarding the most effective teaching methods. However, most agree that a positive classroom environment encourages learning. Students are generally more willing to participate when teachers create an atmosphere of 3 (friendliness / trial / exhibit) and mutual respect. Although some learners may initially be 4 (in the dark / crazy about it / contemporary) about difficult topics, effective instruction helps them gain confidence. As a result, academic success becomes more achievable for a wider range of students.
