Hurricane terror

A hurricane has severely damaged parts of Ras Al Khaimah and Khor Fakkan in the UAE. The violent storm ripped roofs off houses, turned over cars and caused trees to fall down. 25 people were injured. Five people were treated in hospital.

One resident, Abu Ali, 45, told the UAE Times, 'It was terrifying! Just before the hurricane winds came, the sky was very dark with strange clouds moving very fast. I've never seen anything like it!'

Another resident, ten-year-old Fatima Ahmed told us, 'My bedroom window was open. The wind smashed the glass and the window frame blew across the road.'

Fatima said that she and her father stayed under the stairs while the storm raged. When they came out, a tree had fallen on the family car.

'At least only the car got crushed,' Fatima said. 'We are lucky that the tree didn't fall on our house.'

There is still heavy rain in the region and some houses are still without electricity. However, meteorologists predict that the storms will stop in the next 24 hours.

I'm writing this at the luxury hotel in Sir Bani Yas
– we 've been <sup>(1)</sup> back here for an hour now. We've had a great day exploring the island and seeing all the wildlife, but I'm feeling tired and missing home a bit.

I haven't spoken <sup>(2)</sup> to my mum for three days.

Has <sup>(3)</sup> she forgotten me?

Today was awesome! It was the best day we have had <sup>(4)</sup> so far this week. We have seen <sup>(5)</sup> lots of animals every day.

The island is home to hundreds of different animals and has one of the world's largest herd of endangered Arabian oryx. They were extinct in the wild, but there are more than 400 roaming freely across the wildlife park! We also saw a cheetah and a golden jackal. <sup>wolf dog</sup>

So far, we've visited a beach, the wildlife park and a museum. Each day when we get back we write a blog (or a diary). My friend, Alice, hasn't written <sup>(6)</sup> her diary

all week, so now she's got a lot of writing to do!

Use of English

Present perfect with for

We can use the present perfect with for to talk about actions that start in the past and continue in the present.

We make this tense with has + past participle.

(for = a length of time)

We have been at the campsite for three hours now.

He hasn't sent any emails for two days.

Complete the table with information to help you plan your trip.

Where are you?	Dubai desert
Where are you staying?	hotel in Dubai
Day 1 - Activities	camel race
Day 2 - Activities	kit flying game
Day 3 - Activities	learn the information of animals
An interesting fact about somewhere you visit on the trip	The camel have long eyelashes
How do you feel?	I am very happy

Use the notes below to write your own blog or diary entry about Day 1 or 2 of your school trip.

Day 1

We are on a school trip to Dubai.

We are staying in a hotel.

I am writing this blog in my room.

Today we enjoyed a lot in watching camel race.

I found out that I like camels.

Tomorrow we go to kit flying.

I am feeling very happy happy.

This trip is good because I learn so much about desert and camels.
