ENGLISH

1 Match the words to the sentences.

robot • warehouse • shipping • weigh kilograms • centimeter • recharge • kilometer

- How much do you weigh ? Oh, I'm about 60 kg.
- When you buy something online, you often have to pay for the shipping
- It's over a kilometer away. I'd rather drive than walk in the heat.
- I wish I had a robot to clean my house for me!
- I forgot to recharge my cell phone and now the battery is dead.
- This morning the doctor told me that I am a few kilograms or so overweight.
- Online businesses sometimes have a warehouse where they store the things they sell.
- That picture on the wall isn't centered. Move it a centimeter to the left.

2 Complete the sentences.

too heavy • very easy • really large • really busy very difficult • too small • very fast

In the 21st century, everyone is ¹ really busy ! But life is ² very easy now because of all the technology that we have. Things that were ² too heavy for people can now be moved by robots. Our cell phones were almost ² too small , but now have ² really large screens that are very bright. Computers are ² very fast now, and can do more and more things. Life certainly isn't ² very difficult nowadays!

Language Tip

- Very, really, and so are intensifiers. They make adjectives stronger.
 - Very can always be used.
 - ✓ A very large online shopping company ...
 - Really and so are informal and are usually used in speaking.
 - ✓ ... to make shipping really fast and easy.
 - ✓ Having a clean floor is so easy now ...
- Too is used before an adjective to give a negative meaning.
 - ✓ ... people who are too busy to clean! (=so busy they cannot clean)

3 Decide if the sentences are correct (C) or incorrect (I).

5 Draw a sketch of the robot your group researched in Coursebook Activity 5.

6 Write a description of the robot you researched using very, really, so and too.

The cleaning robot is really useful. It is very small and light. It is so easy to use. It is not too fast, so it can move safely around the house. It is really helpful for busy people because it can clean the floor automatically.
