Buildings of the Future

In the past, people built simple houses using wood, stone, and clay. Today, buildings are very different, and in the future, they will become even more creative. Architects are already designing homes that connect with nature instead of blocking it. These new buildings will have open spaces that let in light and cool air.

Some homes will include sliding doors and sliding windows to save space and let fresh air move easily. In busy cities, people will live in tall buildings with green roofs full of trees and plants. These green roofs will clean the air and make cities quieter.

Modern designers also imagine houses that can travel like a boat. They will float on water and move with the wind, allowing people to live anywhere. In the future, we might see homes with wheels that can drive to a new place when people want a change.

These creative ideas show that buildings are not only for living, but also for connecting humans with the world around them. Future architecture will protect the environment and help people live closer to nature.

1. Which idea best summarizes the text?

- A) Future buildings will help people connect with nature.
- B) Modern houses are too expensive to build.
- C) Architects prefer old building styles.

2. Why will some future homes have sliding doors and windows?

- A) To keep the air warm inside.
- B) To save space and let in fresh air.
- C) To make the house taller.

3. How will green roofs help cities?

- A) They will make cities quieter and clean the air.
- B) They will stop people from using electricity.
- C) They will replace streets and cars.

4. What can be inferred about houses that move like boats?

- A) People will be able to travel and live anywhere.
- B) They will only be used for fishing.
- C) They will need strong wheels.

5. According to the text, how will architecture change in the future?

- A) It will destroy natural areas.
- B) It will connect people more with nature.
- C) It will stop using technology.

Text 2

Nature Inside the City

Cities around the world are becoming larger and busier every year. As people build more homes and offices, it is important to connect buildings with nature. Architects now design modern structures that use natural light, plants, and fresh air to create a healthier environment.

Many new buildings include open spaces where people can sit, relax, or enjoy the view. They also use sliding doors and sliding windows to let in cool air and sunlight. This design saves energy and makes people feel closer to the outside world.

Some architects imagine houses that can move like a boat or roll on wheels, allowing families to travel and live in different places. These homes will use the power of the wind and sun to make electricity. In the future, more buildings will have gardens on their roofs or walls covered with plants.

These ideas show that cities can still protect nature while growing. In the future, architects will design buildings that clean the air, save water, and bring beauty to every neighbourhood. When people live closer to nature, they will feel calmer, happier, and more connected to the world around them.

1. Which statement best summarizes the text?
 - A) Future buildings will connect people with nature.
 - B) Cities should stop building tall houses.
 - C) Architects no longer use modern designs.

2. How do open spaces help people in modern buildings?
 - A) They give more sunlight and fresh air.
 - B) They make buildings taller.
 - C) They keep people away from nature.

3. Why will future homes use wind and sunlight?
 - A) To keep buildings dark.
 - B) To make homes move faster.
 - C) To create clean energy.

4. What can be inferred about buildings with gardens and plants?
 - A) They will need less water.
 - B) They will help protect the environment.
 - C) They will replace parks.

5. According to the text, how will people feel when they live closer to nature?
 - A) Bored and lonely.
 - B) Tired and cold.
 - C) Calmer and happier.

The Beauty of UAE Traditional Dress

In the UAE, traditional clothing is an important part of the culture. Men usually wear a long white garment called a kandura, which is loose and comfortable in the hot weather. They often wear a head covering called a ghutra, held in place by a black cord called an agal. Women usually wear a long black dress called an abaya, which covers the body and is also comfortable in the sun.

During special occasions, such as weddings or festivals, both men and women wear more decorative clothing. Women may add colourful scarves, embroidery, or jewellery to show respect for tradition and family. Young people often learn from the elderly about how to wear these clothes properly and when it is appropriate to use certain styles.

Traditional clothing is not just about appearance. It reflects the values of the UAE, such as respect for culture, family, and community. Even though people live in a modern country, wearing traditional dress during important events helps them feel connected to their history.

Overall, the traditional dress of the UAE shows how people balance modern life with their cultural heritage, keeping the past alive while living comfortably today.

1. What is the main idea of the text?
A) Traditional clothing in the UAE is no longer worn.
B) Traditional clothing is important and reflects UAE culture.
C) Only tourists notice Emirati clothing.
2. Which head covering do men wear with the kandura?
A) Cap
B) Ghutra
C) Scarf
3. Why do people wear decorative clothing during weddings or festivals?
A) To show respect for tradition and family.
B) To follow modern fashion trends.
C) To avoid learning about life.
4. Who teaches young people about traditional clothing?
A) Tourists
B) The elderly
C) Poets

5. What does the text suggest about UAE clothing today?

- A) People no longer wear it.
- B) It is only for decoration.
- C) It helps people feel connected to history while living comfortably.

Text 2

The Heart of Emirati Poetry

Poetry is a beloved part of traditional UAE culture. From small villages to big cities, people enjoy listening to poems that celebrate history, nature, and life. A poet often chants verses during festivals and special gatherings, sharing stories that teach values such as respect, courage, and happiness.

The elderly play an important role in keeping poetry alive. They teach young people how to write and chant verses correctly and explain the meaning behind each poem. Schools also encourage children to learn about poetry, sometimes asking them to write their own poems for school events.

During national celebrations or weddings, poetry performances help people connect with their past while enjoying the modern comforts of life today. Listening to poetry is not only entertaining, but it also reminds people about their culture, family, and the importance of community.

Even tourists notice how poetry reflects the UAE's identity. Traditional verses inspire art, songs, and storytelling, showing how the country balances modern life with its rich cultural heritage. Through poetry, Emiratis feel proud of their history and continue to pass on important values from

1. Who often chants verses during festivals in the UAE?

- A) School children
- B) Poets
- C) Tourists

2. What does the word chant most likely mean in the text?

- A) To read quietly
- B) To recite aloud rhythmically
- C) To write poems quickly

3. Why do the elderly teach young people about poetry?

- A) To prepare them for modern life only
B) To help them learn values and preserve tradition.
C) Because children cannot attend festivals

5. How do poetry performances during weddings or festivals help people?

- A) They entertain tourists only
B) They help people feel connected to their past and culture.
C) They replace modern celebrations

5. What is the main idea of the text?

- A) Poetry is only for tourists to enjoy.
B) Poetry in the UAE preserves tradition, teaches values, and connects past and present.
C) Young people no longer enjoy poetry in modern life.

Sample 1:

1.1 Read the text. Write your opinion about wearing normal clothes to school.

Write at least 3-4 sentences.

Many schools around the world ask students to wear uniforms, but some schools let them wear normal clothes. We talked to Sara from Dubai, who is studying in Sydney, Australia. Her new school doesn't have a uniform. "I really like that," she said. "I can choose what to wear and show my own style. It makes me feel more comfortable and confident." Sara thinks wearing normal clothes helps students express themselves. "Everyone looks different, and that's what makes it interesting," she said. She also believes it helps her focus. "When I feel relaxed, I can learn better." Sometimes it's hard to decide what to wear each morning, but Sara doesn't mind. "I prefer that over wearing the same thing every day," she laughed.

I think wearing normal clothes to school can be a great idea. It allows students to express their own style and personality which can make them feel more confident and comfortable. Uniforms can sometimes feel restrictive, and wearing regular clothes can make school life more interesting. However, it is important to choose clothes that are appropriate for learning and respectful to others. Overall, having the freedom to wear what you like can help students feel relaxed and focus better on their studies

1.2 Read the text again. Now write a text in which you write about:

- how your school life would be like without school uniforms
- what clothes you would like to wear to school
- what problems you might face if there were no uniforms

Write at least 110 words.

If my school didn't have uniforms, I think my school life would be more fun and creative. I could wear my favorite T-shirts, jeans, and colorful shoes, and show my own style every day. It would feel more comfortable than wearing the same uniform all the time, and I would enjoy choosing my outfits each morning. On the other hand, there could be some problems. Some students might wear inappropriate or very expensive clothes, which could cause jealousy or distraction. Also, deciding what to wear every day could be stressful. Despite these challenges, I think having the freedom to wear normal clothes would make school life more enjoyable and personal

Sample 2:

1.1 Read the text. Write your opinion about studying in another country.

Write at least 3–4 sentences.

Many students around the world dream about studying in another country. It can be exciting to learn in a new place and meet people from different cultures.

We talked to Omar from Egypt, who is now studying in Canada. “At first, I was nervous because everything was new to me,” he said. “But now I really enjoy it. I’ve learned how to be more independent and confident.”

Omar thinks studying abroad gives students a great chance to grow. “You discover new ideas and ways of thinking,” he said. “It’s not always easy, but it’s worth it.” He sometimes misses his family, but he feels proud to learn and live in another country.

I believe that studying in another country can be an amazing experience. It gives students the opportunity to learn about new cultures and meet people from different backgrounds. Living abroad can help you become more independent, confident, and open-minded. Although it might be difficult at first and you may miss your family and friends, the experience is very rewarding and can help you grow personally and academically.

1.2 Read the text again. Now write a text in which you write about:

- what your school life would be like if you studied in another country
- what things you would like to do there
- what challenges you might face while studying abroad

Write at least 110 words.

If I studied in another country, my school life would be very exciting and different from what I know. I would meet new friends from different cultures and learn about their traditions and ways of thinking. I would like to join school clubs, participate in sports, and explore the city and local attractions during my free time. Studying abroad would also give me a chance to improve my language skills and become more independent. However, there could be some challenges. I might feel homesick, miss my family and friends, or find it difficult to adjust to new school rules and teaching methods. Despite these challenges, I believe studying abroad would help me grow and become more confident in my abilities.

Sample 3:

1.1 Read the text. Write your opinion about living in the desert.

Many people think living in the desert is difficult, but others believe it has a special beauty. The desert is quiet, peaceful, and full of amazing views. Some families have lived there for generations and know how to adapt to the heat. They enjoy the wide-open space, the beautiful sunsets, and the calm nights. Living in the desert can teach people to be patient, strong, and connected to nature.

I think living in the desert can be both challenging and beautiful. Although the heat and lack of water can make life difficult, the desert has a peaceful and unique atmosphere. The wide-open spaces, amazing sunsets, and calm nights make it a special place to live. People who live there learn to be patient, strong, and close to nature. I believe that living in the desert can teach important life skills and give a sense of freedom that is hard to find in busy cities.

1.2 Read the text again. Now write a text in which you tell a story about:

- what your life would be like if you lived in the desert
- what things you would like to do there
- what challenges you might face

Write at least 110 words.

If I lived in the desert, my life would be very different from living in a city. I would wake up early to enjoy the calm mornings and the beautiful sunrise over the sand dunes. I would like to explore the desert, ride camels, and learn how to find water and food in this harsh environment. I could also spend time stargazing at night, as the desert sky is very clear. However, living in the desert would have some challenges. The heat during the day can be very strong, and sometimes it might be lonely because there are fewer people around. Despite these difficulties, I think life in the desert would teach me patience, independence, and an appreciation for nature.

Good Luck
