Last night, I had the most amazing dream. In the dream, I was flying over the city. The buildings looked very small below me. The wind was blowing through my hair. I felt completely free and happy. I flew over the ocean and saw dolphins swimming in the water. They looked up at me and smiled. Then, I flew to the mountains. The snow on the peaks was shining in the sunlight. I landed on top of a mountain and looked at the beautiful view. Suddenly, I heard a voice calling my name. It was my mother. She said, "Wake up! You will be late for school!" I opened my eyes and realized it was all a dream. I felt sad that it was not real, but I was also grateful for the wonderful experience. I told my

As I got closer, I saw that the light was coming from a small house. The door of the house opened, and an old woman came out. She smiled at me and said, "Do not be afraid. Changing Careers

Target Skills: Specific Information, Details, Inference, Overall Meaning

Reading Passage 3B-1: How Technology
Connects Us

Read the passage carefully. Then answer the questions (A, B, or C).

Technology has changed the way people communicate with each other. Fifty years ago, people wrote letters that took days or weeks to arrive. Today, we can send messages instantly using smartphones and the internet. This has made the world feel smaller and more connected.

Social media platforms like Instagram, TikTok, and WhatsApp allow people to share photos, videos, and messages with friends and family around the world. You can see what your cousin in another country is doing every day. You can wish your friend a happy birthday with a simple message. You can join online groups of people who share your interests.

However, there are also problems with technology. Some people spend too much time on their phones and not enough time talking to people face to face. This can make them feel lonely even though they have many online friends. Also, not everyone has access to the internet or a smartphone. This creates a digital divide between people who have technology and people who do not.

Experts say the key is balance. Use technology to stay connected, but also make time for in-person conversations. Put your phone away during meals. Talk to your family and friends face to face. Technology is a tool, not a replacement for real human connection.

Modern World

Read the passage carefully. Then answer the questions (A, B, or C).

In the past, most people stayed in one job for their entire life. They started working at a young age and retired from the same company decades later. Today, this has changed. Many people change careers several times during their lives.

Why do people change careers? Sometimes, they want to learn new skills or try something different. Other times, technology makes their old job obsolete. For example, people who used to fix typewriters had to learn new skills when computers became common. Some people change careers because they want a job that makes them happier.

Changing careers can be scary, but it can also be exciting. It gives you a chance to grow and learn. Many successful people changed careers multiple times before finding what they loved. The most important thing is to keep learning. Take courses, read books, and make connections with people in fields you are interested in.

Experts say that young people today will have an average of five to seven different careers in their lifetime. This means that learning how to adapt is very important. Target Skills: Details, Inference, Overall Meaning Reading Passage 3C-1: Why Do We Dream?

Read the passage carefully. Then answer the questions (A, B, or C).

For thousands of years, humans have wondered why we dream. Ancient people believed dreams were messages from the gods. Today, scientists have several theories about why dreams happen.

One theory is that dreams help us process our emotions. During the day, we experience many feelings. Some are positive, like happiness and excitement. Others are negative, like fear and anger. Dreams may help our brain sort through these emotions and file them away. This is why people who have experienced trauma often have nightmares about the event.

Another theory is that dreams help us solve problems. Have you ever woken up with the answer to a problem you could not solve the day before? Some scientists believe that our brain continues working on problems while we sleep. Dreams can be a way for our brain to test different solutions.

A third theory is that dreams are simply random brain activity. According to this theory, dreams do not have any special meaning. They are just stories our brain creates from random memories and thoughts.

Most scientists agree that we still have a lot to learn about dreams. However, we do know that dreaming is a normal and healthy part of sleep. People who do not dream enough may have health problems. So, the next time you have a strange dream, remember that your brain is doing important work.

Reading Passage 3C-2: How to Improve Your Sleep

Read the passage carefully. Then answer the questions (A, B, or C).

Getting a good night's sleep is essential for your health and well-being. However, many people struggle to fall asleep or stay asleep. The good news is that there are simple steps you can take to improve your sleep.

First, create a consistent sleep schedule. Go to bed and wake up at the same time every day, even on weekends. This helps your body's internal clock know when it is time to sleep. Second, make your bedroom a comfortable environment. Keep it dark, quiet, and cool. Use blackout curtains to block light. Use earplugs if there is noise. Set the temperature to around 18-20 degrees Celsius.

Third, avoid screens before bed. The blue light from phones, tablets, and computers can trick your brain into thinking it is still daytime. Try to turn off all screens at least one hour before you plan to sleep. Instead of looking at your phone, try reading a book or listening to calm music.

Fourth, be careful about what you eat and drink before bed. Avoid caffeine in the afternoon and evening. Caffeine can stay in your body for up to eight hours. Also, avoid large meals close to bedtime. A light snack is fine, but a heavy meal can make it hard to sleep.

Finally, create a relaxing bedtime routine. This could include taking a warm bath, doing gentle stretches, or practicing deep breathing. These activities tell your body that it is time to wind down and prepare for sleep.
