COURSE CODE: Eng. 102

TIME: 2 Hours

Reading Comprehension (20 marks)

Read the following article and answer the questions that follow.

- 1 According to some sociologists, the term teenager first came into common usage at the end of the Second World war. Before that time, people between the ages of 13 and 19 were called adolescents. The name teenager, of course, comes from the numbers in that age range.
- 2 Teenagers were soon seen as a new force in society. Firstly, they had energy. At that time, many people felt tired from their efforts in the war. Secondly, they had different interests from their parents. They did not want to wear the same clothes as them or listen to the same music. Finally, they had money to spend. They could buy clothes, records, concerts tickets, make-up and magazines. For the first time, the media started showing teenagers as a new group in society.
- 3 Some businesses started to make products for this new group. Clothes companies for example, made different clothes and record companies made different songs for them. But, according to the media, teenagers were different from children and adults in other ways, too. They had different attitudes to life. For example, newspapers, magazines and television programmes showed them as adventurous. They said that they were prepared to try new things, like foreign holidays. So travel companies started to advertise holidays specially for them.
- 4 There is an interesting question about some teenage products. The question is- which came first? For example, did teenagers really want foreign holidays so the travel companies made them for them? Or did the travel companies make special holidays and then persuade teenagers to take them?

Now answer the following questions.

- A. Match the topic sentences (1-4) in the table to their corresponding paragraphs (a-d).
