ENG202 Unit 5 / Describing Charts

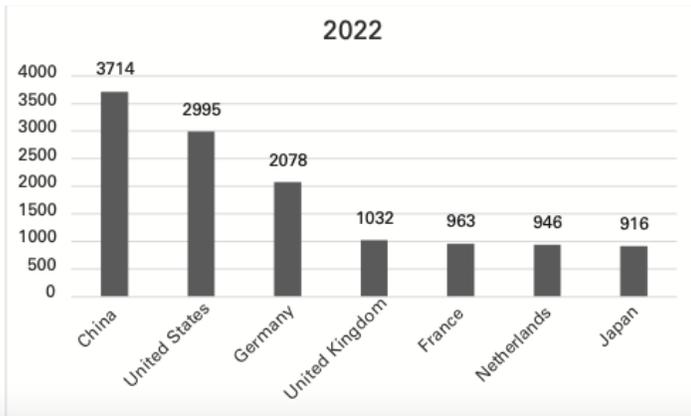

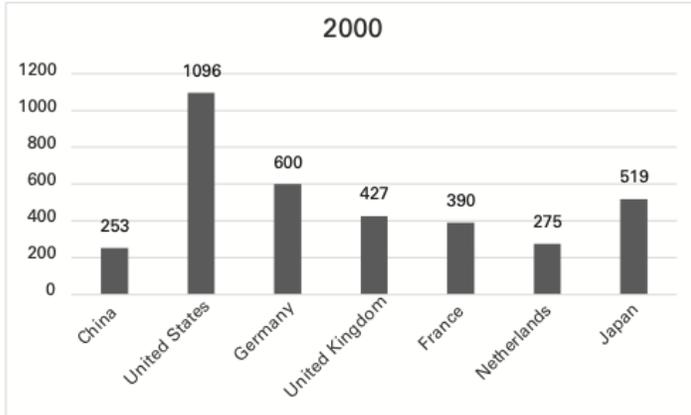

The charts show how college enrollment changed between 2010 and 2019 in six U.S. states: California, Texas, New York, Florida, Illinois, and Pennsylvania. The data is shown in millions of students. Each bar represents the number of students enrolled in colleges in each state for the years 2010 and 2019. These charts help us see which states had more or fewer college students over time.

In both 2010 and 2019, California had the highest college enrollment, with 2.71 million students. Texas and New York also had high numbers, and both saw small changes. Texas increased from 1.54 to 1.64 million, while New York went down a little from 1.31 to 1.25 million. Florida also had a slight decrease in enrollment, from 1.12 million in 2010 to 1.07 million in 2019.

The states with the lowest enrollment in both years were Illinois and Pennsylvania. Illinois dropped from 0.91 to 0.74 million, and Pennsylvania decreased from 0.80 to 0.70 million. This shows that while some states had more students over time, others had fewer. Overall, college enrollment stayed the same in California, increased in Texas, and decreased in most of the other states.

ENG202 Unit 5 / Describing Charts

Exports of goods and services (in billion US dollars)

The two charts show how the exports of goods and services changed in seven countries between the years 2000 and 2022. The countries shown are China, the United States, Germany, the United Kingdom, France, the Netherlands, and Japan. The values are measured in billions of US dollars. The charts help us compare how each country's exports increased or decreased over time.

In 2000, the United States had the highest exports at $1,096 billion, followed by Germany ($600 billion) and Japan ($519 billion). China was near the bottom with only $253 billion. However, by 2022, China had the largest amount of exports at $3,714 billion, showing a very big increase. The United States was second with $2,995 billion, and Germany was third with $2,078 billion. All countries showed growth, but China's growth was the most impressive.

Another important change is that in 2000, Japan was one of the top exporters, but by 2022, it moved to the bottom of the list. The United Kingdom, France, and the Netherlands also increased their exports, but not as much as the top three countries. This shows a big shift in global trade, where China became the world's biggest exporter and many other countries also grew in trade, but at a slower rate.

ENG202 Unit 6 / Writing a Response Essay

In a world full of images, one photograph can change how we see life. I saw a picture that made me think about the hard life some people have. It opened my eyes to a difficult reality.

The picture shows a cold, snowy street with a number of tents. These tents are not for fun, but for people who have no other home. In the image, a man in a wheelchair moves carefully on the icy road. The buildings behind look warm and safe, which makes the scene even harder.

Seeing this picture made me feel very sad and surprised. I felt deeply sad for the people living in such harsh conditions. The image also made me feel angry that many do not get the help they need.

Before this picture, I did not fully understand how difficult life can be for some. Now I see that every person deserves comfort and care. So I decided to donate clothes and food to people in need. This image has changed my view of the world.

I have decided to share this story with my friends so that everyone can help as well. I learned that even small actions can bring hope to others.

ENG202 Unit 6 / Writing a Response Essay

Have you ever seen a picture that broke your heart into pieces?. I have seen a picture on Instagram of children waiting for food and it is one of the photos that shattered my heart. It reminds us that hunger is a serious problem in many parts of the world.

In the picture, several children stand around a large empty container, each holding a small bowl. Their clothes look worn, and their expressions show both hope and desperation. They have likely been waiting a long time, yet there may not be enough food for everyone.

Seeing these children makes me feel sad and helpless. I imagine how difficult it is to live without a steady supply of meals. I also feel angry, because no child should worry about where their next meal will come from.

This photograph changed my perspective on everyday comforts. I realize how lucky I am to have food whenever I want. It made me see the need for helping those who lack this basic necessity.

After seeing this image, I want to do more. I can donate food or money to charities and share this story with others. Even small actions can bring hope to children who face hunger every day.

ENG202 Unit 6 / Writing a Response Essay

Response Essay: The Harsh Reality of Famine in Africa

- Introduction : Background information
The photo shows poor people in Africa suffering from famine. It is a sad reminder of the hunger many face. This essay will talk about what the photo shows, how it makes me feel, and what we can learn from it.
- Body Paragraph 1: The Photo Shows
The photo shows thin and hungry people, mostly women and children, in a dry, empty land. They look very weak and tired. The ground is cracked, and there is no food or water. This picture shows how hard life is for people in places with famine.
- Body Paragraph 2: When I Looked at the Photo, I Felt
When I saw the photo, I felt very sad. It is hard to see children suffering from hunger. I also felt guilty because I have enough food and water, while they have nothing. The photo made me think about how unfair the world can be.
- Body Paragraph 3: After Looking at the Photo for a While, I Decided
After looking at the photo, I decided we need to help. We should support groups that give food and water to those in need. We also need to teach people about famine and how to stop it. Education can help communities fight hunger and poverty.
- Conclusion: From This Photo, I Learned
This photo taught me that famine is a big problem caused by many things like poverty and bad weather. It reminds us to help others and work together to stop hunger. Even though the photo is sad, it can inspire us to make a difference.

ENG202 Unit 6 / Writing a Response Essay

Imagine waking up to find your favorite park replaced by bare land, how would you feel? Deforestation in Bahrain is becoming a serious issue, threatening our environment. This picture had a great impact on me and changed my view on preserving nature.

This picture is in a construction site in Bahrain. The picture shows the ground mostly cleared and leveled, with only a few patches of plants remaining. This scene vividly illustrated the rapid loss of green spaces in Bahrain due to industrial activities.

Seeing this picture made me feel a mix of sadness and frustration. The contrast between the powerful machine and the fragile environment left me feeling disheartened. It was a stark reminder of the consequences of deforestation and the urgent need to protect our natural resources. This image evoked a strong sense of responsibility in me and raised awareness about the importance of the environment.

After doing some research, I started recycling, reducing waste, and supporting sustainable products. I also joined local environmental groups to participate in reforestation projects and community clean-up drives. These actions gave me a sense of purpose and fulfillment, knowing that I was engaged in protecting the environment in Bahrain.

Learning about deforestation in Bahrain through this impactful picture has been a wake-up call. It taught me the importance of small efforts in making a positive impact. Moving forward, I am committed to advocating for sustainable practices and inspiring others to join the cause.

ENG202 Unit 7 / Writing a Report about Strategies/ Organic Food

To: The General Manager

From: Noor Ali, Marketing Department

Date: April 29, 2025

Subject: Effective Strategies to Encourage More Customers to Buy Organic Food Products from Bahrain

Introduction:

The organic food market in Bahrain is growing, but many people still choose regular food because it is cheaper or more available. This report explains the best ways to encourage more customers to buy organic food products made in Bahrain. The strategies are based on current market research and successful marketing methods.

Findings:

First, social media is a powerful tool to promote organic food. Creating posts, videos, and ads can teach people about the benefits of organic products, such as being healthier and better for the environment. Influencers who focus on health and wellness can help promote these products to their followers.

Second, offering free samples in supermarkets and at health events can give customers a chance to try organic food before buying. When people taste the difference and see the quality, they are more likely to buy it.

Third, working with local restaurants and cafés to include organic ingredients in their dishes can help people become more familiar with organic food. This partnership also shows that organic food is high quality and trusted.

Conclusions and Recommendations:

To increase sales of organic food in Bahrain, I recommend using social media campaigns, offering free samples, and building partnerships with local restaurants. These methods can help raise awareness and attract more customers.

ENG202 Unit 7 / Writing a Report about Strategies/ Encourage People to Read

To: The General Manager

From: Noor Ali, Marketing Department

Date: April 29, 2025

Subject: Effective Strategies to Encourage People to Read More Books in Bahrain

Introduction:

Reading is important for education and personal development, but many people in Bahrain, especially young people, are not reading enough. This report explains the most effective strategies to encourage more people to read books. The suggestions are based on recent studies, local trends, and successful reading programs in other countries.

Findings:

One strong strategy is to use social media to promote reading. Creating fun and interesting posts about books, reviews, and reading challenges can catch people's attention. Influencers and local authors can also recommend books and share their reading habits online.

Another strategy is to organize community reading events, such as book fairs, reading clubs, or storytelling sessions in schools and malls. These events can make reading fun and social. People can share their thoughts, get book recommendations, and discover new authors.

Also, offering discounts on books or creating book-sharing shelves in cafés, public places, and schools can make books more available to everyone. This helps remove cost barriers and encourages a reading culture.

Conclusions and Recommendations:

To help more people in Bahrain enjoy reading, I recommend using social media campaigns, organizing public reading events, and making books more accessible. These steps can help make reading a popular and enjoyable activity.

ENG202 Unit 8 / Writing a Cause & Effect Essay / AI in Business

Why AI Is Good for Business

Artificial Intelligence (AI) is changing the way businesses work. Many companies are using AI to improve their services and become more successful. AI helps businesses save time, reduce costs, and make better decisions.

First, AI can do tasks very quickly. For example, it can look at a lot of data in a short time. This helps companies understand what their customers want. As a result, they can offer better products and services.

Second, AI can work all day and night. It does not need breaks like humans. This means businesses can keep working 24/7. For example, AI chatbots can answer customer questions any time of the day.

Third, AI helps reduce mistakes. In many jobs, small errors can cost a lot of money. AI systems are very accurate, especially in tasks like checking numbers or writing reports.

Finally, AI helps with smart planning. It gives business owners useful information to make better choices for the future.

In conclusion, AI is a powerful tool for businesses. It helps them work faster, smarter, and more efficiently. As technology grows, more companies will use AI to be more successful in the modern world.

ENG202 Unit 8 / Writing a Cause & Effect Essay / School Success

What Helps Students Succeed in School?

Success in school is something many students aim for. It means not only getting good grades, but also gaining knowledge, developing useful skills, and building confidence. Several important factors can lead to strong performance in school.

First, consistent effort plays a big role. Students who study regularly, complete their assignments, and prepare for exams tend to understand the material better. Even if a subject is challenging, persistence and dedication often lead to improvement.

Second, having supportive and skilled teachers is essential. A good teacher can make lessons interesting, explain difficult topics clearly, and encourage students to participate. When students feel understood and supported, they are more motivated to learn.

Third, family support also contributes to school success. When parents show interest in schoolwork and provide help when needed, students often feel more confident and responsible. A quiet and organized space for studying at home can also improve focus and productivity.

In addition, time management is an important skill. Students who create study plans, set goals, and avoid procrastination are usually more successful.

Lastly, a positive mindset is key. Students who believe in their abilities and stay calm under pressure are more likely to overcome difficulties.

In conclusion, school success depends on many different factors. Hard work, helpful teachers, family support, good organization, and a strong attitude all play important roles. When students develop these habits and get the support they need, they are more likely to enjoy learning and reach their full potential.

ENG202 Unit 8 / Writing a Cause & Effect Essay / Happiness in Life

What Makes People Happy in Life?

Everyone wants to be happy, but happiness can mean different things to different people. Some think it comes from success or money, while others believe it comes from love or peace. There are a few important factors that often help people feel happy in life like strong relationships, good health, having a purpose in life and money.

First, strong relationships are very important. When people have good friends and close family, they feel supported, loved, and understood. Spending time with people you care about helps reduce stress and brings joy to daily life.

Second, good health makes a big difference. When people eat well, sleep enough, and exercise regularly, they usually feel better both in body and mind. Good health allows people to enjoy life more and do the things they love.

Third, having a purpose in life is also important. This could be a job, a hobby, learning something new, or helping others. When people feel useful and see progress, they often feel more satisfied and proud of themselves.

Money is helpful, especially for basic needs like food, housing, and safety. But after that, more money does not always bring more happiness. Simple things, like enjoying nature or laughing with a friend, can also bring deep happiness.

In conclusion, real happiness does not come from one thing. It is a mix of strong relationships, good health, meaningful activities, and a sense of safety and peace. When people focus on these areas, they often find more balance, joy, and meaning in their lives.
