Shakir Hassan Al Said was a famous painter from Iraq. He was born in 1925 in a small town called Samawah.

From a young age, Shakir loved to draw and paint. He enjoyed using colors to show his ideas and feelings.

When he grew older, he studied art in Baghdad and later in Paris, France. He learned many styles of painting, but he wanted to create something special that showed Arab culture and identity.

After returning to Iraq in 1951, Shakir started to a new style of painting. He mixed Arabic writing, shapes, and colors in his paintings.

His paintings were full of soft colors, Arabic letters, and stories about life, faith, and culture. Shakir thinks that the purpose of art is to connect people to their language, history, and beliefs.

He became one of the most important painters in Iraq and inspired many young artists to follow their dreams. Shakir Hassan Al Said died in 2004, but his art still lives on in galleries and museums around the world.
