Read the text, then answer the questions:

A lion, the king of the forest, had a fox as his minister. Everyday the lion hunted and killed an animal for his food. The fox got a share from it as a reward for serving as minister.

One day the lion fell sick. He could not go out for hunting. So he said to the fox, "Today I can't go out for hunting. But I am very hungry. Please go and bring me some animals for my food". The fox said to himself, "No animal will come to the lion willingly. What shall I do now?" He thought and thought. At last an idea came to his mind. He thought, "The donkey is a stupid animal, I can fool him and bring him here." So he went to the donkey and said "I have some good news for you. The lion, the king of the forest, has decided to make you his secretary. Please come with me and see him." The donkey was very much pleased to hear this. So he went with the fox to the lion's den. The hungry lion sprang upon the donkey and killed him. Then he said to the fox "I am going to the river. You shall sit here and take care of this kill." So the lion went to the river. Now, the fox was very hungry. He hurriedly ate the brain of the donkey before the lion returned from the river. The lion came after some time. He looked at the donkey and asked, "Where is the brain of this animal?"

The fox smiled and said, "Sir, if the donkey had a brain, he would not have come here. Donkeys are brainless animals."
