Practice Questions & Answer Key

(Questions Section) ورقة أسئلة المراجعة

Part 1: Reading Comprehension

Passage 1: Career Paths & Unique Occupations

Choosing a career can lead people down very unexpected paths. Take Mark, for instance, who works as a professional food stylist. His job is to prepare dishes for commercial photography and television advertisements. He spends hours adjusting tiny details, like making lettuce look crisp or adding steam to soup using hot cotton balls. Although it sounds easy, Mark often works under tight deadlines and freezing studio conditions. He studied culinary arts and photography, which helped him master both presentation and lighting. He advises anyone interested in this field to be extremely patient and detailed-oriented.

Another unique career belongs to Sarah, who works as an underwater archaeologist. She dives deep into oceans and lakes to investigate shipwrecks and ancient submerged cities. Sarah spends long periods away from home on research vessels. While the job can be physically demanding and dangerous, she loves discovering historical artifacts that haven't been seen for centuries. To succeed, she needed strong swimming skills, a degree in archaeology, and strict discipline.

Questions for Passage 1:

A. State whether the following sentences are True (T) or False (F):

1. Mark's job only involves cooking food for restaurant customers. []
2. Hot cotton balls are sometimes used by food stylists to create artificial steam. []
3. Sarah works primarily in land-based historical excavations. []
4. Underwater archaeology requires both physical endurance and specialized academic training. []

B. Answer the following questions:

1. What qualifications helped Mark excel in his current job?
2. Why can Sarah's job as an underwater archaeologist be challenging?

Passage 2: Family Life and Personality Differences

Family members often share a household, yet their personal styles and behavior can vary significantly. In many households, older siblings tend to take on protective and organized roles, while younger siblings might be more outgoing and adventurous. For example, Omar is a very calm and introverted teenager who enjoys solving puzzles, reading historical books, and playing chess in his room. In contrast, his sister Layla is full of energy, constantly practicing sports, joining clubs, and meeting new friends outdoors. Despite these sharp differences in how they spend their free time, they support each other during difficult times and enjoy eating meals together as a family.

Questions for Passage 2:

A. State whether the following sentences are True (T) or False (F):

1. Siblings raised in the same home always share identical hobbies and personalities. []
2. Omar prefers spending his leisure time indoors engaging in quiet activities. []
3. Layla enjoys playing outdoor sports and participating in social clubs. []

B. Answer the following question:

1. How do Omar and Layla demonstrate mutual support despite their contrasting traits?

 - Similarities: Describe common interests, habits, or personality traits.
 - Differences: Explain how your personalities or preferences differ.
 - Conclusion: Summarize how you get along despite your differences.

Answer for Part 3: Model Writing Answer

I come from a large family, and I share personality traits with several family members. Everyone tells me that I take after my uncle, although we're different in some ways. My uncle and I both like spending time outside. We both enjoy riding our bikes and going for walks. We go shopping for food together, and then we stop in the park to have a drink and to talk. We both love nature. We're alike in that way. It's a different story when winter comes. Unlike my uncle, I love being outside, I like playing with my friends, but my uncle likes sitting at home. He likes reading stories. Sometimes he and I play cards, although I don't enjoy that very much. I'm too energetic to sit for so long. But it doesn't really matter to me what we do together. I like being with my uncle and spending time with him. We fit together
