Reading Comprehension

Read the passage and answer the questions:

places has become hotter, and ice at the North and South Poles is melting. Many animals have lost their homes because of this. Forests are burning easily, and some cities are facing floods and strong storms. These changes show how the Earth's climate is becoming different from before. Scientists say that human actions, such as using too many cars and cutting down trees, make the problem worse.

We can still help protect our Earth if we work together. People can plant more trees and use bikes or buses instead of cars. Factories can use clean energy like wind and sunlight instead of coal. Everyone can also save energy by turning off lights when they are not needed. If we care for our planet, it will stay a safe and beautiful home for all living things. They need our help to survive and grow. If we act now, we can make a big difference for the future.

Reading Comprehension*Read the passage and answer the questions:

Every year, people around the world throw away millions of tons of plastic. Much of it ends up in oceans, harming animals and polluting beaches. However, some people are working hard to change that. They believe that recycling plastic can protect our planet and create useful products. Instead of throwing plastic bottles away, they turn waste into benches, clothes, or even building materials. This creative idea helps save energy and reduces pollution.

In one Kuwaiti school, students started a recycling project. They collected old bottles, sorted them by color, and sent them to recycling centers. The students were amazed to learn how small actions can make a big difference. Their teacher encouraged the whole community to join. Now, many families bring their plastic each week, proving that caring for the environment starts with us.

Reading Comprehension*Read the passage and answer the questions:

Celebrations are moments of joy that bring people together to share happiness. However, some people spoil these wonderful occasions with negative behaviours. During national or family celebrations, reckless driving and loud fireworks often cause accidents and harm to others. Some also throw trash on the streets after parties, showing little respect for the environment. These actions reflect carelessness and a lack of responsibility towards society.

We can make celebrations more enjoyable by behaving wisely. Everyone should follow safety rules, keep noise at a reasonable level, and avoid wasting food or materials. Parents and teachers must remind young people that true happiness comes from respect and kindness, not from showing off or causing chaos. They can help spread awareness to build a safer and cleaner community for all.

A. Choose the right answer:

Reading Comprehension*Read the passage and answer the questions:

Stories have always shaped the way people understand the world. Long before books existed, people sat around fires telling tales about heroes, animals, and faraway lands. Through these stories, they passed down wisdom, courage, and kindness. A story can teach a lesson without giving a lecture. It can make us laugh, cry, and dream at the same time. When a person reads or listens to a story, he or she begins to imagine, and imagination is the seed of creativity. Without stories, life would have fewer colors and sounds, and the world would feel smaller.

In modern times, stories remain just as powerful. They connect people across cultures, helping them understand experiences different from their own. A book written in one part of the world might inspire a reader thousands of miles away. Every story has a purpose—some entertain, some teach, and some even change the way others think. That is why stories are not only for children; they are for everyone who wishes to see the world with new eyes.

Reading Comprehension*Read the passage and answer the questions:

A mouse was very hungry. She could find no food at all. She looked here and there, but there was no food, and she grew very thin. At last, the mouse found a basket full of corn. There was a small hole in the basket, and she crept in. She could just get through the hole. Being very hungry, she ate too much corn. So she had grown very fat and couldn't climb out of the basket." How shall I climb out?" said the mouse. Just then a rat and his son came along, and he heard the mouse. "Mouse," said the rat, "if you want to climb out of the basket, you must wait till you have grown as thin as you were when you went in." Then, the mouse had to wait inside the basket till it could grow thinner. She learned a very good lesson," thinking before taking any action."
