Reading Comprehension

Read the following passage then answer the following questions:

Yesterday afternoon, Frank Hawkins was telling me about his experiences as a young man. Frank is now the head of a very large company, but as a boy he used to work in a small shop. It was his job to repair bicycles and at that time he used to work fifteen hours a day. He saved money for years and in 1938 he bought a small workshop of his own. During the war Frank used to make spare parts for planes. At that time, two workers were helping him. By the end of the war, the small work-shop had become a large factory which employed seven hundred and twenty-eight people. Frank smiled when he remembered his hard-early years and the long road to success. He was still smiling when the door opened, and his wife came in. She wanted him to repair their son's bicycle.

What makes their schools good? They consider education itself to be the most important goal than a way to get a well-paid job. Learning is valued and teachers are respected. In a world where so many people want jobs with status the Finnish examples is quite extraordinary.

Teachers in Finland are paid no more than their colleagues in other European countries, but they enjoy great job satisfaction. The main reason for this is the freedom they have to teach the material in any way they wish. Finnish students are happy, too. There are no standardized test
