Tigers

Who would win in a fight, a lion or a tiger? Well, if size has anything to do with the matter, the tiger would win. That's because tigers are the largest of all cat species. They grow up to eleven feet long and weigh as much as 670 lbs. This makes tigers the third largest land carnivore. The only larger land carnivores are polar bears and brown bears. Tigers are not only large. In addition, they are also fast. They can sprint as fast as forty miles per hour for short distances and leap as far as thirty feet horizontally. This makes for an extremely dangerous pounce. You might not think that such large, fast, and ferocious creatures need help to survive, but they do. The tiger is an endangered species.

Despite all of the tiger's strengths, the future of the species is uncertain. Tigers face a very high risk of extinction. It is estimated that at the start of the 20th century, there were over 100,000 tigers living in the wild. By the turn of the century, the number of tigers outside of captivity dwindled to just over 3,000. Interestingly, the most serious threats that tigers face come from a much smaller species, one with an average weight of around 140 lbs. That species is Homo sapiens, better known as humans. Humans threaten tigers in primarily two ways: hunting and destroying habitat.

Tigers are hunted for many reasons. People have long valued the famous striped skins. Though trading tiger skins is now illegal in most parts of the world, tiger pelts are worth around $10,000 on the black-market. Though the fur would be incentive enough for most poachers, other parts of the tiger can also fetch a pretty penny. Some people in China and other Asian cultures believe that various tiger parts have healing properties. Traditional Chinese medicine calls for the use of tiger bones, amongst other parts, in some prescriptions.

Tigers have also been hunted as game. In other words people hunted tigers solely for the thrill and achievement of killing them. Such killings took place in large scale during the 19th and early 20th centuries, when a single maharaja or English hunter might claim to kill over a hundred tigers in their hunting career. Though this practice is much less popular today than it was in the past, it has not ceased entirely.

Humans have done considerable damage to the world's tiger population through hunting, but perhaps more damage has been caused through the destruction of habitat. Tigers once ranged widely across Asia, all the way from Turkey to the eastern coast of Russia. However, over the past century, tigers have lost 93% of their historic range. Instead of spanning all the way across Asia, the tiger population is now isolated in small pockets in south and southeastern Asia. This is because humans have drastically changed the environments. Humans have built towns and cities. Road and transit systems were created to connect these towns and cities. To feed the people living in these areas, forests and fields have been cleared to create farmland. Large tracts of land have been strip-mined to yield metals and other materials used in manufacturing. All of these activities have consumed habitats that at one time supported tigers.

A major obstacle to preserving tigers is the enormous amount of territory that each tiger requires. Each wild tiger demands between 200 and 300 square miles. Tigers are also both territorial and solitary animals. This means that they are protective of the areas that they claim and they generally do not share with other tigers. Because tigers need so much territory, it is difficult for conservationists to acquire land enough to support a large population of tigers. Even when such these considerable spaces are allocated, it is even more difficult to patrol such large areas to prevent poaching. There is no easy way to preserve the wild tiger population without making large sacrifices.

Though tiger population faces many threats and obstacles to recovery, there have been some successes in conservation and preservation efforts. For example, Save China's Tigers, an organization working to restore the wild tiger population, successfully rewilded a small number of South China tigers. These tigers were born into concrete cages from parents who were also captive and unable to sustain in the wild. This organization brought these tigers to South Africa and helped them learn the necessary skills for a predator to survive in the wild. Current evidence indicates that the project was been successful. While this is just a small step, it shows that restoring the world's tiger population is possible.

World's Largest Marsupial

What Australian mammal can leap 25 feet in one hop and move for short periods at 35 miles an hour? The red kangaroo. A full-grown male stands as tall as a six-foot person stands and weighs 200 pounds. This is slightly bigger than the grey kangaroo, making it the world's largest marsupial. What is a marsupial? A mammal where the mother has a pouch for carrying, feeding and protecting her young. While a red kangaroo may be the largest marsupial, the newborn baby is tiny, under an inch long. After a few months of sleeping, nursing and growing in mom's stomach pouch the young kangaroo (joey) begins to come out. However, it hurries back to the pouch fast when frightened, hungry or cold. Eventually, the joey gets so big it hangs out of the pouch. Then, at eight months old, it stays out. But the joey remains close to mom until ready to live on its own. Red kangaroos are good swimmers. However, they are best known for their hopping abilities. Their long, powerful hind legs have big feet. Hopping moves them quickly over their grassy, shrubby and desert habitats. Meanwhile, a thick tail helps them balance and steer. What do red kangaroos eat? Grass, leaves and other vegetation. Moreover, guess what - they often regurgitate food and chew their cud just like a cow. The red kangaroo's vegetarian diet provides much of its water. It can also go long periods without drinking. Staying in the shade, panting and limiting most activity to night-time helps the red kangaroo conserve water and stay cool. Red kangaroos travel together in groups called mobs. Mobs include both males and females, with one male being dominant. Males show their dominance by "boxing" with other males. They balance on their tails and try pushing each other off balance with their forearms or by kicking their hind legs. This kicking ability along with their sharp claws can also be used by kangaroos to defend against Australia's wild dog, the dingo.

Task 1: For each item, write a short answer. ( not more than FOUR WORDS)

1- Where does the largest marsupial animal found?

2- Which is smaller, the red or the grey kangaroo?

EVALUATIVE WRITING

1- Write at least 100 words on the following topic:

"Parents-teacher meetings are very useful."

Your writing should be clear and convincing.

AGREE

Many people think, Parents-teacher meetings are very useful. They have their reasons. On the other hand, many other people do not think that, Parents-teacher meetings are very useful. In addition, they have their logical reasons.

In my opinion, I agree that, Parents-teacher meetings are very useful. I have my own reasons too. Parents can follow their children and their levels. In addition, they can help their children to study. If there were problems with the teacher, parents would solve them quickly. If the student's level decreases, the parents will know quickly and would deal with it quickly. There are many other reasons.

In conclusion, I can say that, I have explained my opinion as well as my reasons. I hope my writing would be clear and well-organised.

DISAGREE

Many people think Parents-teacher meetings are very useful. They have their reasons. On the other hand, many other people do not think that, Parents-teacher meetings are very useful. In addition, they have their logical reasons.

In my opinion, I disagree that, Parents-teacher meetings are very useful. I have my own reasons too. Parents are busy to follow their children and their levels. In addition, they don't have time to meet the teachers. If there were problems with the subjects, teachers would solve them quickly. If the student's level decreases, the teachers would help the student and would deal with it quickly. There are many other reasons.

In conclusion, I can say that, I have explained my opinion as well as my reasons. I hope my writing would be clear and well-organised.

2- Write at Least 100 words on the following topic:

"High speed is the main reason for car accidents."

Do you agree? Give your reasons.

Your writing should be clear, well organised and interesting.

AGREE

Some people agree that, high speed is the main reason for car accidents. They have their logical reasons. On the other hand, many other people disagree that, high speed is the main reason for car accidents also. They have their logical reasons.

For me, I agree that, high speed is the main reason for car accidents. I have my own reasons. When we drive so fast, we cannot control very well on our cars. Moreover, we cannot stop the cars quickly. The high speed makes dangerous accidents as well as serious injury. Therefore, there are many deaths because of the high speed driving through the accidents.

In conclusion, I can say that, high speed is the main reason for car accidents. I hope my opinion is clear, well organised, and interesting.

DISAGREE

Some people agree that, high speed is the main reason for car accidents. They have their logical reasons. On the other hand, many other people disagree that, high speed is the main reason for car accidents, also, they have their logical reasons.

For me, I disagree that, high speed is the main reason for car accidents. I have my own reasons. There are many other reasons for accidents. Using the cell-phone is very serious through driving. It is a very important reason for car accidents. Speaking with other people in the car through driving is very dangerous too. The car problems are some other reasons. Driving while you are sleepy or very tired is another reasons.

Finally, I can say I have explained my opinion as well as my reasons. I hope my writing is clear, well-organised, and interesting.
