Social media is a popular part of life for many teenagers today. It allows people to communicate, share photos, watch videos and follow their favourite celebrities or interests. Many students use social media to keep in touch with friends, especially those who live in different cities or countries. It can also be a good way to discover new ideas, learn about different cultures and find useful information. Social media can also have some positive effects on education. Students can join online groups, watch educational videos and get help with schoolwork. It can also give them a platform to share their talents, such as art, writing or sports, and receive support from others. However, there are also some negative effects. Some people spend too much time on social media, which can lead to less time for homework, exercise or face-to-face conversations with family and friends. Comparing ourselves with other people's online profiles can sometimes make us feel unhappy or less confident, because many photos and posts show only the best moments, not real life. In my opinion, social media can be useful and enjoyable if we use it in a balanced and safe way. We should choose carefully what we share, take regular breaks and not spend too much time online. This helps us enjoy the benefits of social media without letting it have a negative effect on our health, studies or happiness.

Answer the following questions.

- 1 How can social media help students keep in touch with friends?
- 2 Give two positive effects of social media on education.
- 3 What are two possible negative effects of social media?
- 4 Why might comparing ourselves with online profiles make us feel unhappy?
- 5 What does the writer suggest we should do to use social media wisely?
