Advantages and Disadvantages of E-commerce (Argumentative)

- 1.In today's economy, business moves at a rapid pace and shows no sign of slowing down. Many of the pioneering changes that have taken place are due to electronic commerce, commonly known as E-commerce. As a matter of fact, the introduction of mobile communication devices and wireless technologies into the workplace has brought about multiple changes and almost unlimited possibilities for traders. These new technologies offer many advantages for businesses, but there are disadvantages as well.
- 2.To start with, E-commerce increases the speed in which transactions take place. This means that customers no longer have to wait in line to buy items but can now securely complete transactions online. Similarly, customers do not have to travel to pick up their merchandise. Instead, they can have it shipped directly to them. Also, customers are offered plenty of choices, which reduces face-to-face interaction, thus saving precious time.
- 3. Another important benefit of E-commerce is that shipping companies provide adequate information online so that customers can place their own orders and trace them from their homes or offices. This is very likely to reduce costs and errors while also engaging the consumer. For example, Fed-Ex was a pioneer in the use of online follow-up. They allowed customers to enter a code number on the Fed-Ex web site to monitor their packages. This removed the operator from the transaction, cut expenses, and satisfied the customer.
- 4.On the other hand, E-commerce has also several risks too. Firstly, there are hidden costs that come along with online operations. For instance, online purchases are often accompanied by high shipping and restocking fees, a lack of warranty coverage, and unacceptable delivery times. The online purchases must be shipped, and the shipping charges are often high. In fact, many E-commerce companies have developed a reputation of overcharging for shipping and handling. According to NPD Group Inc., "excessive shipping fees constitute one of the major obstacles for online customers when deciding whether to buy online or at a traditional store." 5. Another major problem of E-commerce is network unreliability and lack of security. Indeed, one of the main roadblocks to the wide acceptance of E-commerce by both businesses and consumers is the clear lack of adequate security for online transactions. This has led consumers to be increasingly cautious about providing credit card information over the Internet. For instance, in the first quarter of 2001, Amazon.com announced that customer credit card information was stolen from one of its branches. Also, with a user population of 4.39 billion worldwide, the Internet is a very busy information highway. In other words, when an ecommerce website cannot serve its customers because its Internet connection is down, it is very likely to lose sales, credibility, and even customers.
- 6.In conclusion, E-commerce has known a remarkable development and success over the last years. I personally believe that despite the numerous examples of its successful growth, there are many examples where E-commerce failed to succeed. It is very important that people intending to do business online take all the factors that lead to success into consideration and figure out all the dangers that may lead to failure.

1. The Missed Bus

It was a cold, foggy morning, and the streets were almost empty. I was running late for school because I had stayed up too late studying for an exam. I grabbed my bag, skipped breakfast, and rushed outside. When I turned the corner, I saw the bus already moving away. I shouted and waved, but it didn't stop. My heart sank as I watched it disappear into the distance.

I felt frustrated and angry. "Why today of all days?" I thought. I started walking, kicking small stones along the road. As I walked, I noticed an old man trying to carry heavy grocery bags. Without thinking, I ran to help him. He smiled gratefully, and we chatted as I helped him cross the street.

When I finally arrived at school, everyone was standing outside the gate, whispering nervously. I asked what happened. "The school bus broke down on the highway," one student said. "It could have been dangerous." My anger quickly turned into relief.

That moment taught me something unforgettable — missing the bus wasn't bad luck at all.

2. The Lost Wallet

It was a bright afternoon when I noticed a small brown wallet lying on the sidewalk. I looked around, but no one seemed to notice it. Out of curiosity, I picked it up and opened it. Inside, there were several cards, a driver's license, and a thick pile of money. My heart beat faster. I could buy so many things with that money — but I also felt uneasy.

I sat on a bench, thinking hard. Should I take it to the police or just leave it there? When I looked again, I saw a photo of a smiling family — a father, a mother, and two kids. At that moment, I knew what I had to do. I took the wallet to the nearest police station and explained where I found it.

The next day, I got a call from the owner. When I met him, he thanked me again and again. He said he was planning to buy his son's birthday gift with that money. He offered me a reward, but I politely refused. Seeing his gratitude was enough.

3. The Sea Was Angry

Last summer, my family went on a trip to the beach. The weather was beautiful — the sun was shining, and the sea looked calm. My brother and I ran to the water with our surfboards, excited to play.

After a while, dark clouds appeared. The waves grew stronger, but I didn't notice how far I had gone. Suddenly, a giant wave hit me and pulled me away from the shore. I screamed for help, but no one could hear me clearly. My board slipped away, and I started to panic.

Then I saw a lifeguard running toward the water. He swam quickly and pulled me to safety. I was shaking and crying, but safe in his arms. When I reached the sand, my family hugged me tightly.

1. A day to remember

It was a beautiful morning last summer when my dad and I went to the beach to spend a nice day. The boat moved slowly in the water. After two hours, we reached our favorite bay. We put on our masks and dived into warm water. There were fish everywhere.

Suddenly, the sky became dark, and a strong wind started blowing. We were swimming back to the boat; a large wave came and hit my dad against a rock. I swam towards him and grabbed him under my arms. It was difficult, but I got him back on the boat. I was scared, but I had to save my dad. I used the boat's radio to call for help.

The police arrived and an ambulance was waiting. My dad had a broken shoulder and a lot of cuts, but he recovered quickly. I was glad that I saved him, but it was the most frightening moment in my life. I learned to be brave and help people as much as I can.
