Reading Comprehension:

Directions: Read the passage and answer the questions.

- The seas between Arab countries and East Africa and India seem like the perfect place for sailing. However, it can be dangerous because the water is not very deep in some places and the weather can change very suddenly. Over two thousand years ago, people, in these areas, built dhow boats that could travel easily in these seas. They were not heavy and had long triangular sails that could turn so they could sail in any kind of wind. People used dhows mostly for fishing. Later, larger dhows sailed across the sea to other countries. They often carried things like fish, fruit and wood.
- Today, modern dhows have engines, but you can still find traditional ones too. You can visit the Dhow Boatyard of Qatar in Doha and see how people make these boats there. You can also go to the Traditional Dhow Festival in Katara, Qatar where you can also learn more about these beautiful boats and see a number of traditional activities too. Reading

Reading Comprehension:

Directions: Read the passage and answer the questions.

- 1 Blood is very important because it keeps us alive. That is why blood donors are considered lifesavers. Blood donors are people who give blood to blood banks. The blood is then available for people who have lost blood in accidents or need surgery. Hospitals and blood banks store the blood and try to keep enough in hand for major emergencies.
- 2 Donating blood is easy. Medical workers ask donors several questions about their health, as well as test their blood to make sure the blood is safe to use. Then the donors relax, often reading a magazine or talking as their blood is drawn. After donating blood, the donors usually receive some juice or milk to give them energy before leaving the donation center. The whole process is simple and quick, not scary. Most people can donate blood again in about two months if they wish.
- 3 To give blood, a person must be over 16 years old. Students of all ages, though, can learn more about the donation process by visiting a local blood donation center. Donating blood is very important in our lives because it is one of the ways to save lives and help the community.
