READING COMPREHENSION

Read the following passage and answer the questions that follow.

Plants play a vital role in making our surroundings pleasant. Gardens, roadsides, and playgrounds become more attractive with plants around them. Plants give us a calm and refreshing atmosphere. We often enjoy sitting in the cool shade they provide. Additionally, plants release oxygen into the air, which is essential for our breathing. Long ago, people relied on plant materials, such as wood, for their heating and cooking needs, and even today, many communities continue to do so.

Various kinds of plants grow all over the world. Plants serve as food not only for humans but also for many animals. Different parts of plants, stems, leaves, flowers, fruits, and seeds—can be eaten. Plants are also safe homes for numerous creatures. Animals find refuge and shade under plants, birds build nests in their branches, and insects and small reptiles live among their leaves.

Furthermore, many medicines that help cure diseases come from plants. Plants supply us with materials to make furniture, tools, and countless other products. Paper is also made from plant fibers. If people continue to destroy plants by cutting them down, many animals and insects will lose their homes and might disappear. I believe that a world without plants would be very difficult for living beings to survive.

READING COMPREHENSION

(1) Whales are the largest animals in the ocean. A blue whale can weigh up to 150,000 kilograms and grow as long as 30 meters. They eat tons of tiny animals called krill every day. Baby whales are called calves and can weigh over 2,000 kilograms at birth. Whales use their blowholes to breathe air and make sounds to communicate with each other over long distances. They also flap their fins and tails to move through the water. In the past, whales were hunted heavily for their blubber and meat, but now there are laws to protect them from hunting.

(2) There are many species of whales, including the blue whale and the humpback whale. Blue whales are the largest and have a long, slender body, while humpback whales are smaller and known for their impressive jumping and singing abilities. Whales often travel great distances during migration. Sometimes, whales accidentally swim into fishing nets, which can harm them. There are about 10,000 blue whales left in the wild.

(3) One of the biggest dangers to whales is pollution in the oceans. Chemicals and plastic waste can poison whales or trap them. People are working hard to reduce pollution and protect these magnificent creatures. I believe we should all help keep the oceans clean to save whales and other sea life.
