Accidents

Nowadays, road accidents have become a regular occurrence around the world, as these accidents and their effects increase day after day; Thousands of people are killed, including young people and children, as well as the elderly Urban areas and highways are places of serious accidents, where cars abound, people crowd, and fast and reckless driving becomes the solution to reach the desired destination, and this will cause a lot of dangerous and horrific accidents

It is worth noting that the causes of traffic accidents vary in terms of: Excessive driving speed, the reckless driving of many young vehicle drivers, lack of attention on the road for various reasons, as one of the causes of traffic accidents is the presence of breakdowns in vehicles; Such as failure of the brakes or a problem with the wheels of the car, or other malfunctions, and violation of traffic rules, and not paying attention to them is the first reason for the increase in traffic accidents, and because of many of these reasons there are accidents that claim the lives of many people of all groups

Traffic accidents are the first cause of the increase in the number of deaths in many civilized countries, as well as developing countries. There are many causes that lead to traffic accidents; These reasons could be a malfunction in the car's equipment such as brakes, or burst tires. It is also the design of roads is a particular cause of these causes of traffic accidents

There are other reasons for the occurrence of traffic accidents, such as bad weather, neglect of traffic instructions, as well as drinking alcohol and sleeping while driving, and therefore the driver of the vehicle must care about the lives of others, as well as his spirit and safety

To prevent such unfortunate accidents, drivers must be aware of traffic instructions, and focus attention on the road and other cars while driving, and the driver must have the ability to control the car and drive under any psychological and nervous pressure, as the high speed The inability to control the car is one of the most common causes of traffic accidents

With the increase in the number of cars, which became accessible to young people before adults, the number of traffic accidents increased day by day, so driving is no longer limited to adults who are proficient in driving, and traffic instructions, nowadays people have become more neglectful of traffic rules, especially in urban areas, where There are trucks, public transport, bicycles, and road congestion

Various road accidents end the lives of many people of different ages, or cause serious injuries and wounds, so people have to be careful when driving, crossing roads and walking in them
