Teaching Tip

Flashcards are a good way to practice new vocabulary. Write the new words on cards, with the word on one side of the card and the definition on the other. You can use the cards with the whole class or you can divide the class into teams and make it into a competition. This will help students review new words they have learned and remember them better.

Additional Activity

Tell students to pretend that they were at the charity event in the Conversation. Have them write an email to a friend about all the people they saw there, not just those mentioned in the Conversation. Explain that the email should mention the famous people who attended and should include a description of what happened at the event. Encourage them to use clauses with who, that, and which to describe people and things and to use clauses with when and while to describe what happened at the event.

There is a difference between the terms celebrity reporters and paparazzi. Celebrity reporters are usually journalists who are invited to formal events to interview and photograph famous people. The paparazzi are people who take photos of celebrities, often when they are unaware they are being photographed or without their permission.
