Answer questions about the text

Prepare a list of driving tips

Read the first sentence of the reading.

Sometimes a writer will reveal the subject of a reading by stating a question that will be answered in the reading.

What are you going to learn?

(why some countries made decisions about driving on the left versus driving on the right)

😊 Focus attention on the pictures.

Could the pictures be of people driving in Saudi Arabia, and why or why not.

which side of the road the drivers are driving on in the pictures and which side people drive on in your country.

Discuss the law dictates on which side of the road motorists should drive, but that there are no written rules to indicate on which side of the road people should walk. This is more a matter of custom than of law.

Before Reading

1. On which side of the road do people drive in your country?
2. On which side of the road do people usually walk?

1. On the right side of the road.

2. In most of the world's countries, people drive on the right-hand side of the road.

SG3 U8
Page 84

Read the title Is Right, Right?
The first right refers to direction;

the second right means
correct.

The title asks if driving on the right is better or worse than driving on the left.

The writer answers the question in the title.
(It doesn't matter.

Is Right, Right?

Why must you drive on the right side of the road in some countries and on the left side of the road in other countries? Investigate the question, and you find a lot of confusion on right versus left. About a quarter of the world drives on the left, and most of those countries used to be British colonies. In England people drive on the left, but on escalators they stand on the right, so that people who are in a hurry can go up on the left. In Japan, they drive on the left, too, but people usually stand on the left on escalators.

There are different explanations for the use of right versus left. Some people believe that it is a natural tendency to walk or drive on the right. This is because most people are right-handed.

We can look back in history for reasons people move on the right or left of the road. Some people say that in Europe hundreds of years ago, people rode their horses on the left. This way, their sword was between them and anyone who was coming toward them in the opposite direction. They were ready to pull out their sword and fight to defend themselves with their right arm. There is also evidence that ancient Greek, Egyptian, and Roman troops used to march on the left side. And in Rome, they made it a law in the 1300s. So when and why did the right side become popular?

One idea is that in the 1700s, people in France and in the United States started to use wagons with several pairs of horses and to drive on the right side of the road. It was easier for the drivers to sit on the left and control the horses with a whip in the right hand, and it was safer if other vehicles passed on the left so the drivers could see the distance between vehicles. Some people say that in England, people always drove on the left, and in France, people always drove on the right.

In any case, Napoleon, a ruler of France, ordered people to drive on the right side in the early 1800s. France conquered many countries at that time, and so these countries drove on the right. But France didn't conquer England, so England kept its custom of driving on the left.

In the twentieth century, there was a trend to the right. Many cars were made in the United States, and they were made for driving on the right side of the road. As recently as 1967, Sweden changed its laws. Now people in Sweden must drive on the right.

So right or left? Just follow the customs of the country where you are—and be sure to drive carefully on that side!

1. What are some problems due to people driving on different sides of the road in different places?
2. Do you think that there should be one standard for the whole world?
3. What problems do you think Sweden had when it changed from left to right?

1. You are not used to seeing oncoming traffic from the right. It looks like they will hit you head on. If you tend to be an aggressive driver, this is a good time to press "pause" on habits like speeding, tailgating, and weaving in and out of lanes. driving on the opposite side of the road is just asking for trouble.

2. No, I don't think so.

3. Some street signs had to be switched before the move to right-hand driving and rising numbers of road traffic accidents

10 Project

Work with a partner. Research and prepare a list of driving tips and safety rules for new drivers. Make a poster to display in class.

Teenage Driving

"Colin, you just ran a red light!" Brad shouted from the back seat of the car. "Did I? Sorry! I didn't even see the red light." A few minutes later, Colin saw a stop sign—after he ran it. He was driving over the speed limit.

When they got to Mark's house, Colin called his mother. "Mom, we're at Mark's house. Everything is OK. I drove safely."

Teenage driving is sometimes a problem. In the United States, more teenagers die from accidents than from any other cause. There is a higher risk of accidents with 16-year-old drivers than with 17- and 18-year-old drivers. Also, when teens drive with other people in the car, they have accidents more often than when they're driving alone.

What is the reason for the teenage driving problem? Are teens reckless and dangerous drivers? Some people say teenagers are too young to drive. Other people don't agree. They say that the problem is just that teenagers are new drivers. They just need more practice and experience.

What is the solution to the problem? Some people think the solution is "graduated licensing." Here's what this means: A 16-year-old can get a license, but the license has limits that change over time. For example, at first the 16-year-old must drive with an adult. Then he can drive alone. The 16-year-old must not drive with other teenagers or must not drive at night. When the teenager has more experience, he can have a license with no limits. Some countries are trying graduated licensing, and it seems to be working well.

Answer the questions.

1. Why was Colin driving recklessly on the way to Mark's house?

He ran a red light, and he ran a stop sign.

2. Which of these is less safe than the other—a car with a teenager driving alone or a car with a teenager driving with friends?

A car with a teenager driving with friends is less safe.

3. What are two ideas that people have about why teenage driving is sometimes a problem?

Teenagers are too young to drive. Teenagers are new drivers.

4. What limits does a teenager with a graduated license have at first?

At first, the teenager must drive with an adult.

Teaching Tip

Do not be afraid to have high expectations of your students. People often live up to the expectations others have of them. Do not set expectations that exceed their abilities, but do expect them to put effort into their study, to do their homework, and to complete the other requirements of the class.

Additional Activity

Tell students to think about their story or a classmate's story from the Writing exercise. Have students discuss what they or the people in the stories should do differently the next time they find themselves in a similar situation.

Project: Driving Regulations

Organize students into small groups. Assign each group a country, or have each group choose its own. Have students find out about driving regulations in that country; for example, at what age people can get a driver's license, how much it costs to get a license, what the driving test involves, etc. Have each group present its findings to the class. Have the class discuss which country's rules are most like the rules in their country.

Today about thirty-four percent of people in the world live in countries which drive on the left. Sixty-six percent of people in the world live in countries which drive on the right.
