D- Reading Comprehension:

Read the story below. Analyze the story structure and answer the questions.

When 'Tricia Ann got ready to go downtown for the first time, her grandmother told her, "Hold your head high. Act like you belong to someone." 'Tricia Ann knew that her grandmother wanted her to act brave. 'Tricia Ann remembered her grandmother's advice as she took the bus to a place she called Someplace Special. Sometimes she was frightened because people looked at her in an unfriendly way. She saw signs marked Whites Only and Colored Section.

When she saw the signs, she felt sad. She wondered why African Americans like herself could sit only in certain spots. 'Tricia Ann held her head high, just like her grandmother told her.

Finally, she made it to Someplace Special. Her special place was the public library. It was a building where all people were welcome, no matter what color of skin they had.
