1) Read the article quickly and choose the best title.

- 1 Time to switch your BlackBerry off
- 2 How to deal with your inbox
- 3 A quiet word beats sending e-mail

2) Read the article again and list the advantages and disadvantages of using e-mail.

Advantages	Disadvantages

3) Find expressions in the article which mean the following:

- looking at another person (paragraph 2)

- upsetting or embarrassing someone by being rude or tactless (paragraph 2)

- not be caught or punished when you have done something wrong (paragraph 4)

- pretend something is true in order to deceive people (paragraph 4)

- keeping writing or talking to someone, even though you do not see them often (paragraph 8)

- aiming an idea or product at someone (paragraph 8)

by Luke Johnson

E-mail might just be responsible for the productivity increases that economists tell us are the key to rising prosperity. But it could also 5 be sending us all mad.

The truth is that business is generally best done face to face, and if that is impossible, then speaking via the phone. But too many of us now hide 10 behind silent, typed communications. The trouble is that the recipient of an e-mail does not hear a tone of voice or see a facial expression; nor can the sender modify their message 15 halfway through, sensing that it is causing offence. When you read an e-mail, you cannot tell the mood of the e-mailer.

A permanent written form is 20 deadly if you are feeling impetuous and emotional. Too often I have made the mistake of sending an irritable response, which will have festered and angered the other end 25 much more than a difficult telephone exchange. Spoken words fade, but e-mail is forever.

It is so much easier to be tough via e-mail, or to get away with weak 30 excuses, or to make things up, or to say no. Almost invariably, it is more human and serious to have a real discussion rather than a bizarre online conversation. I know 35 employees who have been fired for sending abusive e-mails, or who have faced severe legal consequences for writing something they should have just said verbally.

40 Everyone in business finds their inbox is almost swamped every day with spam. I notice I spend longer and longer sorting out the e-mails that matter from all the junk. It has 45 become, I'm afraid, a dangerously corrupted medium. Large companies suffer chronic overuse of 'reply to all'.

Moreover, e-mail can be a terrible
50 distraction, especially if you use a BlackBerry. I was recently reprimanded for pecking at mine during a board meeting – a gross 55 form of hypocrisy on my part, because I once threatened to sling out of the window any PDA-type devices being used in meetings I chaired. I have now vowed to 60 switch off both BlackBerry and mobile in all meetings – anything less is uncivil.

It must be admitted that e-mail is hard to beat as a transmitter of documents and data. It forces the 65 sender to carefully think through their arguments and express themselves logically. It allows you to reply swiftly to a host of different questions when time is short. You 70 don't have to worry about journey times or travel costs, unreliable postage or engaged phones or voicemail.

E-mail is a marvellously economical
75 tool for keeping in touch with far-flung commercial contacts; you can send them a note at your leisure, 24 hours a day. It is also a terrific method of discreetly and directly pitching to someone powerful. It 80 certainly beats trying to get a meeting or even reach them on the phone.

Like it or not, I could not do my job without e-mail. Meanwhile, I know a senior financier, an ex-chair of a FTSE company, who still has his 85 secretary print out his e-mails for him to read so he can then dictate replies for her to e-mail back. Now that really is mad.
