II. Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

Family types vary in different countries and among different cultures. In Western, industrialized societies, the nuclear family ranks as the most common family type. It consists of a father, a mother and their children. But nuclear families exist together with many other types of family units. In the single-parent family, for example, a mother or a father heads the family alone. A blended family is formed when a divorced or widowed parent remarries. As divorce rates have risen, the number of single-parent and blended families has increased.

In many parts of the world, parents and children live together with other family members under the same roof. These complex families usually contain several generations of family members, including grandparents, parents and children. They may also include brothers or sisters and their families, uncles, aunts and cousins. Even when relatives do not live together, they still consider themselves members of the same extended family includes grandparents, uncles, aunts and cousins.

Question 1: The nuclear family ranks as the most common family type _____.

III. Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

Building positive family relationships

The ordinary, everyday things that families do together can help build strong relationships with teenagers. Regular family meals are a great chance for everyone to chat about their day, or about interesting things that are going on or coming up. If parents encourage everyone to have a say, no one will feel they're being put on the spot to talk. Also, many families find that meals are more enjoyable when the TV isn't turned on!

We should all take turns choosing outdoor activities for our families. A relaxing holiday or weekend away together as a family can also build togetherness.

One-on-one time with the child gives the parents the chance to stay connected and enjoy each other's company. It can also be a chance to share thoughts and feelings.

Parents should celebrate the child's accomplishments, share his disappointments, and show interest in his hobbies. Sometimes it's just a matter of showing up to watch the child play sport or music, or giving him a lift to extracurricular activities.

Family traditions, routines and rituals can help parents and their children set aside regular dates and special times. For example, we might have a movie night together, a favourite meal or cooking session on a particular night, a family games afternoon or an evening walk together.

Agreed household responsibilities give kids of all ages the sense that they're making an important contribution to family life. These could be things like chores, shopping or helping older or younger members of the family.

Question 1: Regular family meals are a great chance for everyone _____.

- A. to have an opportunity share their daily activities
- B. to talk about TV programmes during the meal
- C. to have the spot to talk about
- D. to talk about interesting things that are coming soon

Question 2: The following things are true about outdoor activities for our families EXCEPT _____

- A. all family members try to find out suitable activities
- B. they should be held on holidays or at weekends
- C. they offer a chance to share secret thoughts and feelings
- D. they offer the pleasant feeling of being united

Question 3: Parents can show their attention to their child by all these things EXCEPT _____.

- A. watching the child play sport or music
- B. giving him a lift to extracurricular activities
- C. having a movie night together
- D. setting aside regular dates to do housework

Question 4: Children who share household chores with their parents will _____.

- A. enjoy each other's company
- B. make the family life better
- C. be given a chance to do extracurricular activities
- D. have a family games afternoon or an evening walk together

Question 5: The main idea of the passage is _____.

- A. to give advice on staying connected and enjoying each other's company
- B. how to share household chores between family members
- C. to offer pieces of advice to improve family relationships
- D. the important role of family traditions, routines and rituals
