Doing the Right Thing

'It's almost ten. I have to hurry,' Alex thought as he walked over to his mother to bid her goodbye.

'Poor thing! You looked after me all night. You must be exhausted. Why don't you stay home today?' she whispered.

Alex hugged her and said, 'I have to go, Mum. It's my job. If I am not there today, my friends will have to do the extra work. Don't worry, I'll be fine. I've put your food and medicines on the table. Here's your mobile phone. Call me if you need me.'

Alex got to work in time. At noon, the restaurant was crowded. Although he was tired, Alex greeted everyone cheerfully and took their orders patiently. He also removed dirty crockery from the tables quickly. Many of the customers left tips for Alex because they appreciated his service. 'I need money to pay for Mum's medical bills. The tips I get today will help a lot,' he thought.

Wow! My customer has left me a generous tip!

 tip = money that customers give to someone who serves them in a restaurant

The last customer left and the restaurant closed for the day. Alex wanted to hurry home to his mother. As he was about to go out of the door, he noticed his friend seated at one of the empty tables. He walked over to speak to him.

What's the matter, Tom? You look worried.

My father's in hospital. I need to pay his hospital bill but I don't have enough money to do that. I don't know what to do.

Alex thought for a moment. Then, he said, 'I know what it's like to need money. Here's some money. It's not much but I hope it helps.'

Some of the workers in the restaurant overheard the conversation. Taking out their wallets, they said, 'We'd like to help too.'
