Part 4: Short Passage Questions (15%)

One of the men most devoted to advancing American society was Peter Cooper. He found success in commerce by selling glue and iron, but toiling for social causes is what he is best remembered for. One of Cooper's schemes involved building a pipeline that provided clean water for New York City. Many people at the time had been getting incredibly ill from drinking dirty water. He is also known as the first man to develop a steam train, Tom Thumb, in America. Cooper's life was proof of how mechanical knowledge can change the world, and he openly endorsed the pursuit of this knowledge. Consequently, he set up a school called The Cooper Institute. He believed that a high standard of education in science and the arts should be accessible to those who qualify, independent of their color, religion, sex, wealth or social status, and should be "open and free to all". Cooper even ran for president.
